Objection to the Appointment of Mr. Phelps TO THE VACANT CHIEF JUSTICESHIP

It is Claimed That His Appointment Would Lose the Democracy Irish Votes-The Wilkins Resolution,

Washington, April 19,—[Special.]—Mr. Candler, like the Georgia senators, is opposed to the president's silver policy, and, therefore opposed to the Wilkins resolution which passed the house Monday. Of this Mr. Candler and today. and today.

THE WILKINS RESOLUTION.

"The Wilkins resolution ought to have been defeated. It was presented in the house by an individual member of the committee on suspension day without even having been considered by the committee and without the authority of any committee. But its object was much more reprehensible than the way in which it was brought into the house. It contains the substance of a bill passed by the house some time ago, authorizing the secretary of the treasury to buy government bonds with the surplus in the treasury. This bill went to the senate and seeing that such a law would result in a further contraction of the currency. Senator Beck also amended it as to require the coinage of silver to an amount equal to the national bank currency withdrawn from circulation, as the bonds are bought up by the sent back to the house and referred, as such bills usually are, to the committee of ways and means. To prevent its ever being reported from this committee and considered by the from this committee and considered by the house, Mr. Wilkins, chairman of the bank committee, and himself a banker, sought to surreptitiously get this resolution through the house. Thus the secretary will be authorized to enter the market and buy bonds which are not due at a heavy premium, all of which will insure to the benefit of the bankers and bondholders. The currency will be depleted, and what is left will be the more valuable, and above all silver received a black eye. OBJECTIONS TO MR. PHELPS.

OBJECTIONS TO ME. PHELPS.

The Star this afternoon says:
Since the announcement was made that the president had about decided to appoint Minister R. J. Phelps, of Vermont, chief instice of the UnitedStates, the strongest pressure has been brought to bear to prevent the appointment. This pressure is excited by leading democrats, and is not based on any objection to Mr. Phelps's capacity or democracy. But the president has been urged to consider that Mr. Phelps has incurred the bitter animosity of the Irish Americans; that he has been regarded as the very incarnation of English anti-Irish sentiment, and prominent democratic leaders declare that it might jeopardize the party's success next fail to appoint Mr. Phelps.

and prominent democratic leaders declare that it might jeopardize the party's success next fall to appoint Mr. Phelps.

The president has been urged to calmly consider this phase of the subject. He has been reminded of the loss in 1884 of a large proportion of the Irish-American vots; that the subsequent elections have shown that this element had been won back to the party, but that it would be dangerous at this hour to rouse their indignation by the appointment to so high a place of a man whom they regard as an enemy of Ireland and as the friend and ally of Ireland's oppressors. Democrats who thus protest against Phelps's appointment do him the justice to concede his high character and great ability, but, in addition to the political aspect of the matter, they say he is too old. The Star reporter was today informed that these representations, made to the president by men who have only the good of the party at heart, have influenced him to hold the appointment in abeyance for the present at least, and that he may determine to reconsider it.

However, Mr. Phelps arrived in the city this e may determine to reconsider it. However, Mr. Phelps arrived in the city this afternoon, and is the guest of Secretary Bayard, which looks very much like the president has already tendered him the appointment. A very prominent democratic senator said to your correspondent today, should the president send Mr. Phelps's nomination to the senate now, since he has been reasoned with by the leaders of the party, he thought it probable that the democrats would oppose his confirma-tion, which would necessitate his withdrawal and force Mr. Cleveland to appoint a man who would prove satisfactory to the entire party.

At the suggestion of Mr. Mills, of Texas, an understanding was had that the committee on ways and means would yield the floor for the day to appropriation bills, and that debate on the tariff bill would be resumed Tuesday of next week, Saturday being accorded to the committee on public lands for the consideration of the homestead bill.

The house then went into committee of the whole, Mr. Springer, of Illinois, in the chair, for further consideration of the Indian appropriation bill.

An amendment was adopted appropriating $20,000 for the education of Indian pupils in Alaska. The provision for an inspection of Indian schools and a superintendent of such schools was stricken out.

The clause appropriating $2,558,000 for the payment of the Choctaw judgment having been reached, Mr. Blount raised a point of order that it was a matter over which the committee on Indian affairs had no jurisdiction, and that it had no place on the bill. The prevision for the payment of the judgment was eally in order upon the sundry civil or deficiency bill, over which the committee on appropriations had no jurisdiction.

The point was argued by several members, and finally overruled by the chair on the ground that the judgment of the United States supreme court was based upon a treaty stipulation, and that the subject matter of the appropriation had properly been referred to the committee on Indian affairs.

Mr. Bayne, of Pennsylvania, offered an amendment providing that at Indian training schools, which were church organizations, as assisting in educational work, the Christian Bible may be taught in the native language of the Indians, if in the opinion of persons in charge of the schools it is deemed conducive to the moral welfare of the pupils. OHIO REPUBLICANS. The Delegation to Chicago Instructed for man, Hon. E. L. Lampson; secretary, Alex C. Cain; sergeant-at-arms, A. Keeler.

DAYTON, Ohio, April 19 .- At 10 o'clock the republican state convention was called to order by the temporary chairman, General J. War-ren Keifer, and reports of committees were called for. The permanent officers are: Chairman, Hon. E. L. Lampson; secretary, Alex C.

Hop. Mr. Lampson, permanent chairman, was introduced and made an extended address. The report of the committee on rules and the order of business provided that nominations should be thus: Secretary of state, judge of the supreme court, member of the board of public works, four delegates at large, four alternates. The presidential electors at four alternates, two presidential electors at large. The report was adopted.

Hon. Charles Foster, chairman of the comittee on resolutions, read a report.

mittee on resolutions, read a report.

Daniel J. Ryan was nominated for secretary of state; J. P. Bradbury for supreme judge; Wells S. Jones, of Jackson county, for member of the beardlof public works, and Governor Foraker, Charles Foster, Ben Butterworth and William McKinley, Jr., were elected delegates at large to Chicago.

The resolutions adopted direct delegates to vote for Sherman. John S. Atwood, a colored man, who was placed in nomination for delegate to Chicago, received 213 votes, being the lowest in the list of five, Governor Foraker having been previously chosen under a suspension of the rules.

A platform was adopted without amendment and with applause, which was augmented by the unveiling of a portrait of John Sherman suspended over the centre of the stage. At this point the convention listened to several songs from glee clubs, the burden of which was Sherman for president. The platform reaffirms the platform of 1887 adopted at T ledo and presented the following declaratione, ad ditional:

and presented the following declarations, ad ditional:

1. Free and untrammelled suffrage Hes at the foundation of the republic and its restoration by every constitutional means in states where it has been overthrown or impaired, and its maintenance everywhere, is our settler and determined purposes. We denounce the democratic party for its manifestation of war amendments to the constitution whereby republicans of the south are practically denied a vote in the government of the nation and the power of democrats of that section is unlawfully augmented. We charge that the democratic party is now in the enjoyment of power confessedly procured by the unlawfull suppression of the franchise in the southern states. We affirm that the acceptance of power thus secured is the apparent purpose of the party to continue the methods mentioned, and its shameless defense of criminals, who in the states of Maine, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio have sought to stifle the popular will by frauds and forgeries, justify us is charging that it has practically become, in a national sense, an organized conspiracy against a free ballot and fair elections. In view of these facts and believing that to deprive a legally qualified voter of his franchise or to Impair mubile confidence in the fairness of a count is to weaken and ultimately destroy free institutions, we call upon the particular distinctions, we call upon the particular distinctions, we call upon the particular of these crimes against suffrage, and we demand of congress that in the exercise of its constitutional authority it enact such laws as will ensure treedom and fairness in election in representatives to congress.

2. We favor such economic legistation as will protect all American industries that can be profitably pursued by American clitizens. We insist that our producers are entilled to the control of their own markets to the extent of their ability to supply them. We denounce all efforts to open those markets to expert the last annual message of the president, and the recent time when the disability was incurred or to the cause of death.

4. The people of Ohio unqualifiedly condemn the refusal of the democratic majority of the house of representatives to permit the passage of the direct tax refunding bill passed by the republican senate, which was a proposition to repay to the loyal states, without interest, the money paid by them at the beginning of the war to aid in suppressing the rebellion and to cancel the unpad balance, principal and interest, due from the rebel states upon said taxes, and we denounce as treacherous and cowardly the surrender of northern democrats in congress to a small minority of cx-confederates and their abandonment of the bill which, if passed, would have contributed nearly a million and a half of dollars to the relief of the taxpayers of Ohio.

The fifth and sixth indorse Foraker's administration and the action of the present state legislature. The seventh is as follows: The seventh is as follows:

The republicans of Ohio recognize the merits and services of the statesmen who have been mentioned for the republican nomination for the presidency and will be loyal to anyone who may be selected. We present John Shermann to the country as eminently qualified and fitted for the duties of that exalted office, and the delegates to the republican national convention this day selected are directed to use all honorable means to secure his nomination as president of the United States.

Two Disreputable Women Make Things LAREDO, Tex., April 19 .- [Special.]-About noon today, as the county attorney, J. L. Van-derwerker, was coming down on one of the principal streets of this city, and had arrived at the corner of the Market plaza, he was assaulted by two enraged females, members of the dem imonde, who horsewhipped him severely. One held him while the other administered the punishment with a rawhide riding whip, He was unable to defend himself in the least against their attack, and would have fared much worse had bystanders not interfered. Upon being interviewed Mr. Vanderwerker claimed that the woman had forfeited an appearance bond, and that the man who had the same to pay had been instrumental in having them attack him. The women claim that he has persecuted them in various ways, almost amounting to blackin various ways, almost amounting to black-mail, and that they had already paid a fine each upon the case referred to, and when again summoned to appear in the same case con-cluded to chastise him with the above result. They were arrested.

Died of Whisky Drinking.

San Francisco, Cal., April 19.—[Special.]
Acute alcoholism was the doctors certificate in the case of the death of little Willie McConnell, the seven-year-old son of a foundryman of this city. Willie and a playmate found a quart bottle of strong whisky while they were playing alone in the house. Willie drank fully one-half the contents, which was regular "not gut," but his companion took only a small drink. The McConnell boy fell into a stupor, and although the doctor pumped a pint of whisky out of the lad's stomach, he gradually sank and died tonight. Died of Whisky Drinking.

It is proposed by some to kill out all the dogs in the neighborhood. A WORDY WAR.

Between Senators Plumb, Sherman and Butler.

THE GREAT FRAUD OF 1876 DISCUSSED.

Passage of the Bill for South Da-kota's Admission as a State. Washington, April 19.—In the house, three bills for lighthouses at Newport News, Middle Ground, Virginia, St. Joseph's Point, Florida, Holland Island bar, Chesapeake bay, Maryland; and one for a light ship at Bush's Bluff Shoals, Elizabeth river, Virginia, were reported from the committee and placed on the

The senate then resumed consideration of the bill for the admission of the state of South Dakota.

In opening the debate, Mr. Plumb contrasted the small votes in the southern states with the vote of Dakota, and said that not one of them had cast as many votes at any election within the last five years as the territory of Dakota had cast in 1886. He contrasted tables of taxation in the state of Alabama to show that the assessed value of guns, pistols and dirks was four times greater than that of farming tools and agricultural implements, and yet he said the senator from Missouri did not object to the representation of Alabama in the senate or house of representatives, but was willing to meet them on a plan of equality.

Mr. Allison said he agreed with the senator from Missouri (Vest), that the question was a political one. It was a political and a party question. The attitude of the democratic party in both houses on this subject is an attitude of non-action. Its policy had been clearly shown in Mr. Springer's letter, read at the Aberdeen convention. He believes South DAKOTA SHOULD NOW BE ADMITTED as a state, and that North Dakota should also be now admitted and he should be glad to vote at this session for the admission of North Dakota, Mr. Vest asked him if he would vote now at this session for the admission of North Dakota, Mr. Vest asked him if he would vote now for a bill admitting to statehood the whole territorry. He (Vest), would.

Mr. Allison replied by asking Messrs. Vest and Butler if the democratic party, as a political organization, would vote today for the admission of the state of Dakota as a whole.
Mr. Vest's response was that, as a matter of course, neither he nor Mr. Butler could speak for the democratic party. But he would say, with his democratic coll was, there was not one of them who would not vote for the admission of the state of Dakota as a whole at any time.

SENATOR ALLISON SPEAKE.

Mr. Allison suggested that political parties were to be judged by their general action, not by individual statements, and the action os the democratic party, as represented on the senate committee on territories, as well as the action of the house committees, showed it policy on this subject. The former had produced a substitute in the way of an enabling act, and the latter had reported an omnibus bill. This, in his judgment, was political legerdemain. The idea was to tamper with the bill until the presidential election of 1888 shall have passed; and, if the political exigencies of the fature require it, the democratic party would continue to play the same game.

Mr. Allison said he would not have joined in the discussion at all were it not that he desired to represent the importance of admitting South Dakota as a state, and North Dakota as well; and he would join hands with the senators for the admission of Mentana. The question was one of the most important that could come up for consideration. because it related to the exclusion of 600,000 or 700,000 people from participation in the affairs of the republic. That was an unjust exclusion and SENATOR ALLISON SPEAKE.

people from participation in the affairs of the republic. That was an unjust exclusion and should not be tolerated a moment longer than should not be tolerated a moment longer than absolutely necessary.

BUILER AND PLUMB HAVE A SPAT.

Mr. Butler congratulated the senate that the discussion had got back to the real issue, and he thanked the senator from lowa (Allison) for having discussed the question from the standpoint of a patriot and statesman. He declared that democratic senators were prepared now and would be prepared in the future to admit Dakota into the union as a state.

Mr. Plumb asked whether he would also be willing to incorporate in the act of admission the same condition as in the state of Texas, authorizing new states to be formed out of Dakota from time to time.

Mr. Butler—Perfectly, sir; perfectly; and I have said over and over again, that the best solution of this question was to admit the territory of Dakota as a whole, and leave the people free (after it had become a state) to determine the question of recording termine the question of recording termine. akota from time to time. termine the question of geographical area.

Mr. Plumb—Are you willing to admit Dakota without an enabling act?

Mr. Buller—No, sir.
Mr. Plumb—That is, that you will vote to admit Dakota at some future time?
Mr. Buller—Admit it as fast as can be done according to the prescribed constitutional

Mr. Butler went on to say that he opposed Mr. Butler went on to say that he opposed the so-called South Dakota movement because, in his judgment, it was a political trick to get supremacy in the senate. Referring to Spooner's quotation (the other day), from a speech by Mr. Lincoln that, "no party could fool all the people all the time," he said that in this instance the republican party could not fool the youngest page on the floor. could not fool the youngest page on the floor. The thing was so transparent, flimsy, flagrant in its pretensions that even a blind man could see it. For himself he never would consent to see it. For himself he never would consent to any party getting, by snap judgment, an unfair advantage in a body where that party's supremacy was rapidly waning. He referred to the charges and aspersions made by senators against the southern states as "a descent into the very quagmire and slime of township politics and ward meeting controversies," If this (asaid) were an occasion to go into ancient history, he could re-creet in those southern states shameful parodies on the government that had once been set up there, debauching high places of state, diffusing into the very atmosphere

debauching high places of state, diffusing into the very atmosphere

THE STENCH OF CORRUPTION.

[And those governments had been set up and sustained by senators who were now denouncing the southern states. If he could re-crect these disgraceful republican governments in the south, and could ask the country to "look on this picture and then on that," instead of seeing all the evils and damnable stories spoken of by the senators, they would see peace and quiet, and progress and devotion to constitutional government and the union of the country. If he were to proceed to show this, the senators who had spoken against the south would be utterly scorned and driven out by intelligent people, and would hang their heads in shame for provoking the contest.

Referring to Mr. Spooner's statement the other day, that slavery received its death stroke with the first gun fired at Fort Sumter, he said that fact was so; that the sound of that gun had rallied and swelled in magnitude and volume until it sounded around the world. He (Butler) rejoiced in it. But instead of planting the flowers of good will to men and peace on earth on the grave of slavery (as every patriot ought), the senators were slandering that section.

REVIVING THE COSPEL OF HATE.

He would not imitate the bad example of senators on the other side by citting newspaper extracts showing the recent electoral frands in Rhode Island. He did not know whether these charges were true or untrue, and he would not degrade his position by araigning a sovereign state in the settlement of its domestic affairs. Thode Island was capable of taking care of herself, and she would. South Carolina was capable of taking care of herself, and she would. South Dakota and the admission of two men, claiming to be senators from that state, Mr. Butler asked where were the credentials of these two senators? Who had signed them? Were they signed by a blizzard and countersigned by a snow bank? Who was governor of South Dakota? Where was he, and what were his the very atmosphere of bonds next week under terms of the circular of the 17th inst, will be the same as last year except that the names of those offering bonds will be suppressed. This will be done, he said, because many bondholders do not care to have the fact of their willingness to part with their bonds made known to the public. He said it was easy to see how such information might be used against a business man and he had, therefore, decided to treat the names in each case as confidential. The public would, however, be furnished through the press with a complete list of all offers received, including full details as to the amount and rate in each case. A committee will be appointed to assist the secretary in considering offers and the amount to be realized by the government by their acceptance.

A caucus of democratic senators was held this morning to hear Senator Morgan upon the fishery treaty. It was not very well attended. Senator Morgan discussed for half an hour the treaty in its political and economical bearings, and the action upon to of the committee on foreign relations. The eaction of considering it in open session came up, and was decided adversely by a small majority.

powers? The mere statement of the proposition carried with it its own absurdity. All sounding of gongs, he said, and diversions from the real issue were intended to cover up and conceal from the public the real motive behind all this movement. He spoke of the two senator to fail claimants from South Dakota as a new political firm, not Moody and Sankey, but Moody and Eggleston. He said that Mr. Sherman had indulged in abuse and misrepresentation of one section of the country; had condecended to deliver to that section a lecture on how its people should conduct themselves, and had reflected on the senators from Louisiana for taking advantage of alleged frauds and violence. He he Butler) were to retort on that senator, he might say that he (Sherman) had got advantage of his own wrong as a co-conspirator in the TREATEST FRAUD THAT EVER DISGRACED American politics and had maneuvered himself into the treasury of the United States; and that he had done more (which could not be said of any southern man)—had rewarded his co-conspirators in that crime and fraud out of the public treasury of the United States by giving them office. He would not say that the lungs are not affected. The results of the operation of trachectomy render it seams tor had done that; but it would have been just as competent for him to say that as the senator to say that the senators from Louisiana were occupying their seats by fraud and bloodshed and outrages in elections.

Mr. Hawley—The senator from South Carolina would say that boldly, concerning the senator from Ohio, if it were true; would he senator from Ohio, if it were true; would he not?

Mr. Butler—No, sir; I would not. I have too much regard for the desencies of life.

official bulletins were fixed.

The doctors on leaving the place were eagerly plied with questions. Empress Augusta arrived at the palace at midday, and remained at the emperor's bedside for half an hour. Other members of the family visited him towards evening, when he felt fairly comfortable, and read and worked and slept a little.

The dectors had a computation of $220 and senator from Ohio, if it were true; would he senator from Ohio, if it were true; would he not?

Mr. Butler—No, sir; I would not. I have too much regard for the decencies of life.

Mr. Hawley—The senator has, however, practically said it.

Mr. Butler—I said that I might retort in that way. What I mean is that one statement is just as fair as the other. The senator from Ohio went to the verge, and I think beyond the verge, of decorum in making these charges against men who are his equals in every aspect of life.

Mr. Chace took up Mr. Butler's allusion to election frauds in Rhode Island, and undertook to repel that slander. The insinuation against the republicans of Rhode Island he denounced as an unqualified faisehood. So far as the action of the republican party was concerned, there never had been a fairer election. The state had been flooded with money—democratic money—by men who were organized to manage the affairs of the democratic party, hational and state. Gentlemen on the other side seized these slanders published by democratic and mugwump papers, and rolled them as a sweet morsel under their tongue as a constrevailing argument to the charges of fraud and violence in elections in certain southern states.

Mr. Vest said in his allusion the other day in regard to bribery in the Rhode Island election that he had given his authority as the Providence Journal, which had belonged to Senator Anthony, and which he understood to be a republican paper. The doctors had a consultation at 8:30, and agreed that the emperor was better. The discharge which occurred this afternoon gave him nuch relief. The patient's breathing is free and almost normal. It tends, however, to prove that Dr. MacKenzie's diagnosis of abscess in the trachea was correct. The progress of pyaemia, symptons of which are very slight, show no signs of increasing. The emperor said to Chaplain Koegel today:

"You pray for my preservation-rather pray He perseveres in transacting business, and does not cease writing. The empress is often summoned to decipher the most illegible characters, and save him from the annoyance of rewriting them. As a result of family negotiations, a jointure of 12,000,000 marks is secured to the empress, and Prince Henry inherits 1,000,000 marks upon the emperor's death. There were rumors at midnight that the emperor's feet were swelling, that postules had begun to appear on his neck and that there was much discharge from his throat.

THE EXCITEMENT IN PARIS. oulanger Takes His Seat -- The Streets

Boulanger Takes His Seat—The Streets Lined With Troops.

PARIS, April 19.—In his speech in the chamber of deputies today Premier Flouquit said that before the business on the notice paper was proceeded with some explanations were necessary. Between the chamber and government the situation was not so perilous as had been represented, yet it was serious enough. The government wished to know if there existed in the chamber a majority prepared to put confidence in the cabinet, whose tendency was wholly toward the left. It required the confidence of the chamber in order to defend republican institutions against these who displayed the monarchical flag or who offered the nation a plebiastic riddle.

M. Junele, of the left, asked leave to question the government as to its general policy.

election that he had given his authority as the Providence Journal, which had belonged to Senator Anthony, and which he understood to be a republican paper.

Mr. Chace—It announces itself as an independent paper. I suppose that senator will agree with me in one respect.• I have no doubt that he will look upon independent papers and mugwump papers very much as I do, and that he will say to them, in the language of holy writ, "Because ye are neither hot nor cold, I will spew you out of my mouth." [Laughter.]

Mr. Call made a speech in refutation of what he called the aspersions on southern states; and was interrupted by remarks made by Mr. Edmunds and Mr. Hoar. The latter called attention to a newspaper article indicating, the existence of election frauds and violence in the south written and published, he said, within the last fortnight by Henry Watterson, an eminent southern democrat. There was also, he said, an article from the same eminent gentleman in the Forum stating the same thing.

Mr. Berry also spoke to repel, he said, charges affecting the honor and good name, not only of members of the senate, but of the southern states. He recalled the outrages of THE CARPET BAG GOVERNMENTS in the southern states, but especially in the state of Arkansas, and he asserted that there were more crimes committed in the north in proportion to population than there were in the south. Referring to Mr. Sherman's speech he declared that the man who made it had not that love of country which qualified him to be the country's executive. Every such speech made in the senate tonded to increase the bitterness between the white and colored people of the south and to cripple those who were anxious to see the colored man secured in every right guaranteed to him by the constitution.

Mr. Sherman said that he had not particion. M. Junele, of the left, asked leave to question the government as to its general policy. Premier Flouquet assented, and there was an immediate debate on the subject. In the course of the ensuing discussion, M. Floquet declared himself an advocate of reuision of the constitution, but he appealed to the chamber to await the time when the cry for revision would not be as it now is, either spars spread ould not be, as it now is, either snare spread y the monarchists or a cloak to hid the dic-

The streets at noon were lined with police, and bodies of troops were held under arms in order to prevent any riotous demonstrations upon the occasion of Boulanger taking his seat every right guaranteed to him by the constitution.

Mr. Sherman said that he had not participated in this debate until he heard the charge that Hayes held his seat by fraud. In refuting that charge he had found it necessary to go over the history of the events of 1876, and he declared again that the charge was false by wheever uttered or wherever uttered.

Mr. Vest replied to Mr. Sherman, and again brought up Mr. Blaine's statement, insinuating that if Hayes had been electsd president, Packard had been elected governor. Mr.
Vest proceeded to quote from Mr. Blaine's speech, interspersing quotations with comments of his own, and declared in conclusion that the seating of Hayes was the most colossal fraud in the history of the government.
He would say so "in church or graveyard," and believed that the people of the United States would indorse that opinion.

Finally, after a day spent in debate, which was at times quite excited, and which occasionally caused manifestations of laughter or approval in the galleries, which were rebuked by the presiding officer, the senate came to a in the chamber of deputies. in the chamber of deputies.

Le Soir (anti-Boulangist) estimates the crowd around the chamber at fifty thousand. Boulanger ignored the appeals of hundreds of friends to avoid publicity. On entering the Salle de la Paix of the chamber of deputies a Salle de la Paix of the chamber of deputies a crowd of deputies craned forward to see him, and Boulanger, thinking they manifested sympathy for him, smiled. A storm instantly broke, the deputies crying: "A Bas le Distateur," "A Bas Boulanger." Keys were used as whistles, and for a time pandemonium reigned. Anger convulsed every face. For a moment the general flinched, but he immediately regained his self-possession and entered the chamber laughing, taking a seat near Piatt. Towards midnight there was an uproarious Boulangerist demonstration in Place de Bourse. A strong body of police drove the crowd to Rue Montmartre and made several arrests. In a short time the uproar had entirely subsided.

M. Laguerre, Le Herisse and DeRoulede accompanied Boulanger when he entered the chamber. Boulanger received an undeniable ovation on his way to the chamber. In Rue Rivoli ladies threw flowers into the general's approval in the galleries, which were reluked by the presiding officer, the senate came to a vote on the substitute and then on the bill. The substitute was defeated—yeas 23, nays 26—and the bill passed—yeas 26, nays 23—a strictly party yete

PRICEFIVE CENTS.

A BELLE BECOMES A BIGAMIST.

GAFFNEY CITY, S. C., April 17.-This town

Now Without a Husband.

GAPTNEY CITY, S. C., April 17.—This town and the surrounding country have been greatly excited ever since the middle of February last over the marriage of Miss Florence Little, who was the belle of all the young ladies and was without a rival in the beauty of her features and the splendor of her magnificent form, which is fit for an artist's model.

Miss Florence was a great fiirt, and could not resist a little pastime in this way with any fit specimen of the sterner sex. Mr. Augustus Mintz was her devoted slave. The course of true love was smooth until Dr. D. C. Atkinson, of Chester, S. C., came upon the scene and took in the regular features and Junolike form of the anrivaled belle of Gaffney City. At once he haid his heart and hand and the resultant feet of Esculapius at her feet, and forthwith they became engaged. This was in November last, and the happy event was postponed from time to time until the lst of February last. Just before this day, a friend of Miss Little telegraphed Atkinson that Miss Little was very ill and confined to her bed, and that the marriage would have to be postponed. The doctor became suspicious and came to this place, and when he got here he found his affianced so well and hearty that she and her other charmer, to wit, Augustus Mintz, that they were out in the country driving over hill and down dale behind a spanking team of prancing steeds. This was enough for Atkinson. He took the next train for Chester, considering the engagement at an end. In a day or two he received a letter from Miss Little saying that he had treated her shamefully, and if he had waited until she returned from the ride that she would have complied with her part of the agreement. Atkinson paid no attention to this letter, and yery soon he received other letters from the immediate family of Miss Little saying that Miss Florence was greatly hurt at being jilted by the doctor, and to come and see her at once.

Atkinson answered that he had not quite lost his self respect and would not see her. However, self respect or no self respect, he did go, and as soon as he came within personal contact and as soon as he came within personal contact of the siren horsuccumbed to her wiles and fissicinations, and they became engaged again, and on the 12th of February last they were married and left on the train for Columbia and Charleston on the honeymon trip.

Of course the marriage of our belle created a great stir and was heralded far and wide—so far and so wide that Mr. Angustus Mintz heard it. Thereupon Mr. Mintz went out in the country and brought Rev. Mr. Carter to this place, and both made the statemet that on the first day of February last, when Mintz and Miss Little were out riding, that they had been marriage was to have been kept a profound secret for two years, until Mintz became of age.

the marriage was to have been kept a profound secret for two years, until Mintz became of age.

This startling fact was published in the newspapers, and while the doctor and bride were regaling themselves at breakfast at the Charleston hotel the newspaper containing the statement of Mintz was brought in. The bridegroom was quick in discovering that Mintz laid claim to his wife. The paper was passed to Miss Little, and she bitterly denied that she had married Mintz, and said it was a jealous lie he had told on her because she would not marry him.

Atkinson believed this statement, and was further confirmed in it when, Miss Little left him, saying that she could not consent to live longer with him until the story of Mintz had been proven to be false. Dr. Atkinson then went to work to find out the truth of the double marriage. He spent a good deal of money, and up to a week ago had not been able to get any evidence to corroborate his wife or to prove her denial to be untrue. He was settling down to the belief that Mintz and Carter were liars, when all at once Miss Little confessed to the doctor that she had really been married to Mintz on the day they were out riding. Atkinson has published a card giving these facts and "earnestly hopes that a generous public and a kind providence will deal lightly with the poor, unfortunate lady."

Mrs. Mintz, as she must now be known, has

Mrs. Mintz, as she must now be known, has Mrs. Mintz, as she must now be known, has been guilty of bigamy, and it is, not kown whether she will be prosecuted or not. Why she married Atkinson is not explained. In this state no license is required and it may be she thought Minzt and Carter would keep silent and the former marriage would never be known. Mintz has brought suit to have the marriage annulled as to himself, and will put Atkinson on the stand to prove his case. So it appears that the double marriage, instead of providing one woman with two husbands, has appears that the double marriage, instead of providing one woman with two husbands, has probably deprived Miss Florence Little of a husband and may subject her to a criminal proceeding.

There has been no event in the history of this thriving town that has so excited all our people. Miss Little, or Mrs. Mintz, is now at her home and sees no one but the family.

TRADING IN REAL ESTATE. One of the best evidences of the new life in Augusta and the faith which the people have n her future is the trading in real estate. This has has been a system of speculation or invest-ment unknown in Augusta. A man bought real estate in Augusta only to live on, or sometimes came into the possession of addi-tional property by the foreclosure of a mort-gage or by unheritance, but none ever thought gage or by inheritance, but none ever thought of buying it as an investment to sell again. Such is not the case now, however, and it will be hard to find a tract of land outside of the city limits towards the exposition grounds or the sand hills, which has not been bought or the sand hills, which has not been bought up by syndicates or land companies, and laid off in lots for sale. Lots which sold six months agol for $250, now sell for from $330 to $500, and there is a marked appreciation in the value of all suburban propcrty on the west side. Dummy lines are being projected to several localities about the city projected to promise of much trading in and there is promise of much trading in the next few estate around Augusta in the next few

THE WOMAN'S EXCHANGE. There was recently organized in 'Augusta a woman's exchange under seemingly auspicious circumstances. Officers were elected, canvasscircumstances. Officers were elected, canvassing committees were appointed and the preliminary work was set on foot. The very best ladies in the city were enlisted, and most excellent ladies were on the roll of officers. At the next meeting, however, there were some unexpected developments and it has leaked out that it was a most spirited and exciting session. In the time which had clapsed since the last meeting it had been discovered that only two churches were represented in the list of officers, and that a large majority of them were members of one church. This of them were members of one church. This would probably have never been noticed at any other time, but the regent revival meetings in Augusta have brought the church question into prominence, and the spirit of unity and co-operation, which had been prominent in these meetings, led some of the good ladies of the exchange to think there should be a religious division of the officers. This question was sprung in the meeting and it was proposed to have a board of directors, or man

The first elected officers took this as a hint, and promptly tendered their resignations. After a very spirited session, in which parliamentary law was at a discount, the meeting dissolved without results. At the next, which was called a few days later, the denominational feature was abandoned and it was determined that the exchange should not inquire into the religious convictions of any of its members, but that all alike should be eligible to office, regardless of their denominational allegiance. The original officers, however, refused to recall their resignations. But now officers were elected; every tions. A Misguided Contemporary Sees a in Every Passing Shadow. In Every Passing Shadow.

ATHENS, Ga., April 19.—[Special.]—In last Sunday's issue of the Athens Banner appeared an editorial which was probably intended to confuse the issues before the people, or to nut on record another change of tactics on the part of that paper. In this editorial issue was made of The Constitution's report of the Clarke county convention. Your correspondent sent the Banner a card, stating his position clearly and giving some evidence from the columns of the Athens Graphic, and even from those of the Banner, but the card was not published. A determined effort is being made to keep the true issue from the people and to color their expressed opinions by the friends of the infamous revenue system. It is said that an article describing the illness of the German emperor was doubled leaded and ordered printed as editorial under the heading, "Another Victory for Revenue Laws. The Banner-Watchman Endorsed Again!" The compostors doubtless held a consultation and changed it, as the article appeared without the heading.:

From the Marietta Ga. Journal. We met Colonel Charles D. Phillips last Monday and we asked him:
"Is it true, colonel, that you are a candidate for he democratic nomination for congress from the 7th

"It is," he replied. "I'm in the race until the nomination is made, and then I am for the nominee, and from present indications I stand a good chance to be the nominee." "So you feel encouraged then?"

"Oh, yes, or I wouldn't run. There is no fun in running just simply to be defeated. But I have let-ters that give me decided encouragement from several counties in the district. I also find my he people, in Marietta and the |county, almost solid for me and they urge me to make the race, and I am going to do it. I want the support of everybody. I have no ill will against any man, and nothing to say against our clever and esteemed representative, Mr. Clements, but he has had the office four terms, and many of my friends think he ought to give away to other democrats. At least I find there is considera-ble opposition to him this time. If the people are anxious for a change, I would be glad they consider me the right man to make the change with." And with this remark, the colonel suited and walked off, carefully helding his wounded arm n which he was shot several weeks ago.

THROUGH THE CITY.

There was quite a little excitement at the Kimball yesterday morning, growing out of the firing of Mr. E. E. Bill, a traveling salesthe firing of Mr. E. E. Bill, a traveling salesman. An investigation of the matter shows that Mr. Bill had, either in jest or in earnest, threatened to put a "buck nigger" into one of the rooms he rented. This remark reached the ears of Mr. Beermann and that gentleman ordered the Boston drummer from his house. Mr. Bill, evidently with a view to avoiding all further trouble left the hotel and went to the Markham. The circumstances were considerably discussed about the hotels, and it is generally considered a case of 'much ado about nothing.'

Shocking Case of Infanticide.

Shelbyville, Tonn., April 19.—[Special.]
The community is excited over a case of infanticide. Some citizens of this place were passing along the Roserville pike, when they discovered the dead body of an infant in the yard of a house on the eastern outskirts of Shelbyville. Notice was at once given to the proper authorities. It was discovered that the child was the offspring of a colored woman named Harriet Frost. The skull was found to be crushed on one side and several other marks of viclence were found upon the body. These, with other suspicious circumstances, caused the jury to bring in a verdict of infanticide. with other suspicious circumstances, caused the jury to bring in a verdict of infanticide. THE JAY BIRD FARM.

The Story of a Foolish and Unfortunate Farmer.

The Inevitable Result of Not Leaving Well Philosophical Observations.

A News reporter stepped into the ordinary's office and asked Judge Hammond if he had anything to remark. The judge turned his beaignant countenance and said

"Yes, young man, I have. It is this: Since the world began man has suffered striking out in the dark and trusting to luck and chances, rather than to arrive at a proper conclusion, which he might well do by reason ing from cause to effect, forgetting that it is better to bear those ills we have than to fly to others we know not of.' How many times in your own experience have you known men who would not be satisfied with what they had. and made matters worse by attempting unad visedly to mend their affairs, and find that they had made a mistake and were in a worse condition than at first? It seems that we are all prone to fall into the common error of not 'letting well enough alone.' The old woman is constantly met with who had the hen that is constantly met with who had the hen that laid a golden egg every day and killed the hen to get all the eggs at once and discovered that she had committed a sad mistake in destroying the fountain and source of her wealth. Men who are controlled by an unhealthy ambition frequently rush on to a goal high above that to which their fellows have attained, and when they have reached the highest peak in sight must at last pause, panting on its summit, wretched to find that there is nothing but a barren waste beyond and dizzy when they look back to the fertile plains which they have left far below—unable to go forward and look back to the fertile plains which they have left far below—unable to go forward and ashamed to go back. Then they keenly regret that they did not 'let well enough alone.'

These remarks have been suggested by my acquaintance with a gentleman not many miles away. He resided on a beautiful farm, which was fertile and productive, elegantly located, well timbered, and well watered, with recovery wear the suggested of bettern and whend proper proportions of bottom and upland, meadow and woodland, orchards and vineyards, so that his crib, barns, cellar and smokehouses were always well filled. Providence had indeed smiled upon him and surrounded him with peace and plenty. His sons were intelligent and manly his daughters lovely and fair. A few years are the had been watching the habits of the jay birds, which seemed to take a peculiar fancy to a grove of original forest oaks in front of his handsome residence. They congregated there in large numbers, they preyed upon his cherries and berries, his beans and peas. They would break up the nests of other birds indiscriminately by eating their eggs, and would even attack and devour the young of other birds, One day, when he was much fretted at the wicked depredations of these pestiferous jaybirds, an old superstitious negro fortune teller told him to "beware of them jaybirds, that they were emissaries of the devil and every Friday they carried lightwood knots to hell. The farmer was doing well at this time, but without counting the cost or calculating the consequences he resolved that he would exterminate this mischievous jaybird family, and made it his daily business and pleasure to shoot these pests; and it seemed that the more he killed the more they increased. From the first he had an eye to business and concluded that he would have some remuneration and perhaps profit for his amproper proportions of bottom and upland meadow and woodland, orchards and vine creased. From the first he had an eye to business and concluded that he would have some remuneration and perhaps profit for his ammunition and trouble, and for the damage the jaybirds had done; so he decided that he would fertilize his garden with the dead birds. He had four trenches dug, each one hundred yards long. Each day the farmer would plant his dead jay birds and cover them, leaving their tails sticking out like so many head stones to their graves; and when he had filled his four trenches it was a unique spectacle to look at those long, straight lines of blue feathers slashed with black and white sticking out of the ground.

The farmer's idea was for the birds to decay The farmer's idea was for the birds to decay and thus fertilize the ground so he could plant seed in the same rows the next spring. So he kept the rows clear of weeds and grass. Early next spring he was surprised to see a strange growth spring up from these rows, and concluded to allow the growth to remain and develop into what it would. The plants grew rapidly and assumed the colors of the jay bird plumage. At last the bicom came in the flashing colors of the jay bird, making a beautiful flower. The farmer, as he thought, now saw the road to fortune and fame thrown wide open, and he advertised extensively that he had originated a new and beautiful acquisition had originated a new and beautiful acquisition to the floral world and named it "Blue Jay Plant." The floriculturists and nurserymen an lovers of the marvelous and beautiful flocked from all parts of the country to examine and ands of dollars in cuttings from the "Blue Plant." The farmer believed he had fo Plant." The farmer believed he had been the end of the rainbow, where he might fill his bag with gold. He was offered enormous sums for his farm, but no amount of money could induce him to sell his bonanza. At last seed bolls began to form like bolls on our cotton stalks. When the visitors saw these their aggeness to nurchase was uncontrollable and ton stalks. When the visitors saw these their eagerness to purchase was uncontrollable and they offered fabulous prices for the farm; but the farmer said. "Why, I will keep my farm and sell my seed." And he took thousands of orders cash in advance for seeds when gathered. So from his cuttings and seed he had become the wealthiest man in his county.

But alas! for the uncertainty of all human affairs and expectations based upon human calculations! The seed bolls grew to about the size of cocoanuts, and began to ripen and affairs and expectations based upon human calculations! The seed bolls grew to about the size of cocoanuts, and began to ripen and mature, and the farmer made extensive preparatious to gather and preserve his golden harvest. But alas! alas! one bright day in August the farmer's garden was changed into a tunultuous pandemonium. The seed pods had bursted and the new fledged jaybirds had poured out in swarms thicker than the locusts in Egypt. The farmer rushed out and stood aghast, and in the agony of consternation he exclaimed, "This is hell!" Day by day the trouble increased; the jaybirds in retaliation for the farmer's war of extermination commenced to bring lightwood knots and sand and drop them on the land, and the last time I was in the neighborhood the plantation was covered with lightwood knots and sand several feet deep, and the occupants had! fled as from a pestilence and no one will live on it. I climbed a hill near and saw something like a datk cloud suspended over the land, and then I saw a shower of light wood knots and sand descend, and then the crowd of jaybirds flew away for another turn. The cry of a jaybirds ask a shower of light wood knots and sand descend, and then the crowd of jaybirds flew away for another turn. The cry of a jaybird always throws the farmer into spasms of terror, and in his lucid intervals he is heard to repeat again and again, "Oh, if I had just let well enough alone."

Board of Trade Officers COLUMBUS, Ga., April 19.—[Special.]—The board of trade at its annual meeting tonight elected the following officers: President, J. K. Orr; vice-presidents, C. E. Caverly, S. A. Carter, M. Joseph and H. J. Abbott; secretary and treasurer, E. L. Wells.

McNish, Johnson & Slavin, Refined Min strels.

Tonight these burnt cork artists will give their reception at the opera house and they invite all their friends, as well as the amateurs of refined fun. We know by their past visits that they are ex-celled by no other company in this line, and they bring to Atlanta, to close the theatrical season, pring to Atlanta, to close the theatrical season, a world of novelties well deserving the most liberal patronage. Their music is excellent, their fun unsurpassable, their costumes supremely elegant, their performance will be a revelation. We need only to show how they were received in Boston to prove that they are worthy of an oration in the Gate City. The Boston Herald says:

"McNish, Johnson & Slavin's minstrels at the Globe made a most propounced success when they

"McNish, Johnson & Slavin's minstrels at the Globe, made a most pronounced success when they last appeared in this city, and that the good impression which they lett behind them was not effaced during their absence, and that they were held in kindly remembrance, was demonstrated by the size of the audience which greeted them at the Globe theater last evening. The house was packed in every part at 8 o'clock, and the main entrance to the theater was crowded with disappointed persons who were unable to obtain good seals, and who were compelled to go away or purchase tickets for performances later in the week. The audience was not only large, but very enthusiastic, all the old favorites were cordially received and the flew performers greeted kindly. Floral tributes were plematical, and a great many huge boskets and bouquets of choice flowers, and some made up in very elaborate designs, were handed over the footlights to the leading members of the company. A handsome floral stand was a present from the New York base-

The hotel and entire property, we learn, is now in charge of a chartered company, known as the "Georgia Electric Mound Improvement Co." The hotel is well constructed and well furnished with all modern conveniences; the dining room is capacious, the fare good, the proprietors attentive and courteous, sparing no pains to make their guests comfortable.

The surroundings of the Health Resort are certainly fine, and are truthfully described in the following sketch handed us by the proprietors: "The high rolling country, the stately forests, the abundant supply of pure spring water, the absence of swamps or ponds, the red clay soil, the dry and bracing character of the atmosphere, all indicate its freeness from ma-larial influence, and suggest its great advantages as a resort for pulmonary invalids.

"The scenery is as picturesque as is to be seen anywhere outside of a mountainous country, and the walks and drives are as good as can be found in a region like this.

"The historic towns of Washington and Crawfordsville are but a few miles distant. The former was the home of the late Robert Toombs, and is also invested with peculiar interest as being the town in which the confederate states cabinet held its last meeting—the house still stands in which that meeting was held. The latter town was the home of the late Alexander H. Stephens, and the house, still standing, in which he lived is an object of interest to all strangers who tarry in its

The "Electric Shaft" is a large excavation about 12x50 feet, dug to the depth of about 14 feet in the north side of a large hill. The per-pendicular wall on the south side of the shaft is composed of a brownish colored rock con-taing alum and iron, and perhaps other minerals. In this the electric property is said to exist. The excavation is divided into three compartments, furnished with comfortable seats. Mineral water is brought into these rooms from without by means of pipes. It has a chalybe-ate taste and is, we doubt not, a valuable wa-

While we and others of our crowd could not detect any electric influence, there were some who claimed to feel it perfectly—and there were but few of the ladies who did not feel the influence. It was described by one intelligent-lady who had been visiting it daily for some time, and had greatly improved in health, as coming in wave-like impulses.

We have to confess our inability to say whether or not the influence claimed for this shaft is due to electricity or to other causes or forces. That many remarkable cures have resulted at this Health Resort there is abundant evidence in the testimony of many indivalids who have found benefit by visiting the shaft and using the water.

It is certainly a good place to pass the time agreeably and pleasantly, and we hesitate not to racommend to any who are in search of re-creation or health to visit the Electrict Health

Ma. B. F. Brown: Dear Sir—This certifies that during last May I was stricken with severe nervous prostration, was confined to my room for three months, and to my bed for the greater part of the time. About the 20th of August I went to the "Higham Shaft" (Electric Resort,) and after sponding four days there found that I was completely cured, and have been entirely well ever since then. The cure in my case was a great wonder to me and my friends, and I am a strong believer in the virtues of the place. (Signed) Mrs. J. K. Durst, January 23, 1888. Greenwood, S. C.

The Electric Rooms.

The Electric Rooms (or Shaft) are three compartments in an excavation fifty feet long, twelve feet wide, and from eight to fourteen feet deep, made in the side of the hill known as the "Electric Mound." The Southern wall of the excavation is composed of an Alum Rock, extending the full length of the compartments. In this Rock the ELECTRIC PROPERT resides.

The whole is enclosed by a neat frame building, provided with a pleasant sitting room, thus affording the patient comfortable protection against inclement weather. The Electric Rooms.

Treatment.

The treating of patients consists of sitting in the Electric Rooms two or three hours daily, getting the benefit of the Electric Currents and druking freely of the Electricd Water.

No artificial means used whatever.

Accommodations.

The recently erected Electric Mound Hotel is a 44 room house, modern in its construction and conveniences, of new and approved equipment, an excellent table and superior service. Bath rooms, provided with bot and cold water, are conveniently ranged on each floor, and a supply of pure free stone water is forced by steam power a distance of twenty-three hundred feet to the summit of the hill upon which the hotel stands.

SAM'S SAYINGS.

A Sensation in a Columbia, S. C. Church.

Mr. Jones Denounces Dancing Christians-He Offends Some of His Audience, Who Leave Their Seats-Other News.

COLUMBIA, S. C., April 19.—[Special.]—Sam Jones lectured on "Git There" in the operasome lectured on "Git There" in the opera-house here last night. The attendance was small. This morning he preached in the Washington Street Methodist church a ser-mon that has caused much unfavorable comment. Here are some specimen phrases:
"My horse and my dog love me, but if you don't love Jesus, you are lower than my dog and my horse.

"I ain't no poor white folks. I was born poor, but I haven't held my own.
"If you show me a dancing Christian, or a drinking Christian, I will give you a thousand

"If you Episcopalians say your church don't object to dancing it's a lie. That little old rotten thing you belong to may not.
"You Episcopalians talk about being saved when you believe and are baptized. That Several persons here rose to leave, but Mr. Jones remonstrated and they remained. There was much more in the same strain. There is general disgust at Mr. Jones's talk. TEN THOUSAND PEOPLE

Assemble to Celebrate a Railroad Connection. OXFORD, N. C., April 19 .- [Special.]-There were ten thousand peeple at Oxford today to witness the celebration in honor of the completion of the Oxford and Clarksville railroad last night. Governor Scales and staff, Treasurer Bain, Auditor Roberts and Superintendent of Public Instruction Tinger arrived here at 9 today. A large party of business men of Richmond arrived on a special train. The exercises of the day began just after noon. There was a parade composed of Richmond Bank Bat alion, composed of companies from Warrenton, Raleigh and Oxford, the cadets of Horner's school, and detachments of the Richmond Howitzers, which escorted the distinguished guests. The second part of the procession was composed of the trade parade, which was admirable. The entire procession was one mile in length, and passed through the principal streets on its way to the grounds of the orphan asylum, where Governor Scales reviewed it. Speeches began at 2 o'clock, and were heard by 10,000 cople. After the address of welcome by Major N. A. Gregory, R. W. Winston introduced Hon. Daniel G. W. Fowler, orator of the day. Other speeches were made by A. H. Williams, General Plyton Wise, of Virginia; . Samiss, John L. Cunningham, Major Mc-Phail and ex-Congressman W. H. Kitchen. The celebration is, by far, the grandest ever known in this section. Ten thousand porsons were fed by the people of Oxford, and a ball tonight closes the observance of the greatest event in the history of the town.

THE DEATH SWINDLERS

Who Euchred An Insurance Company Out of $26,000. Montgomery, Ala., April 19.—[Special.]—
Two of the swindlers who were engaged in the famous death forgery and life insurance swindle, by which companies in Chicago were defrauded to the amount of about $25,000, were captured at Mathews's station, on the Montgomery and Eufaula railroad, near this city. They were run down and arrested by Detective Frank Meyer, of the Pinkerton Detective agency, and Special Officer W. D. Cheatham, of the Montgomery police force. The prisoners were brought direct to Montgomery and lodged in jail. They gave their names as J. R. and Thomas Bond, and deny any knowledge of the crime with which they are charged. Detective Meyer telegraphed the governor of South Carolina to-day for a requisition, and the papers are expected tomorrow. The crime with which the prisoners are charged was committed a few weeks ago. A bogus death certificate was content and presented to the insurance comprisoners are charged was committed a rew weeks ago. A bogus death certificate was gotten up and presented to the insurance company to obtain a life insurance policy amounting to $25,000. They got the money, but the game was found out and they had to flee the country. The men in jail here are from South Carolina and highly connected. One is said to be the physician who gave the bogus certificate of death.

A HOTEL BURNED.

A Large Fire at Wadesboro, N. C.-Flames Elsewhere. RALEIGH, N. C., April 19.—[Special.]—There was a large fire at Wadesboro yesterday, which burned the Grand Central hotel, livery stable, two stores and one dwelling. The fire started two stores and one dwelling. The fire started in the hotel and spread so rapidly that the guests had to run for their lives. Many went out of the building undressed, and some left all their jewelry and money, as well as clothing, behind them. There were some narrow escapes. W. I. Hardison sprang from a third story window and was badly hurt, while another man was struck by the falling wall of the hotel and injured perhaps scripnly. It is estiother man was struck by the falling wall of the hotel and injured perhaps seriously. It is estimated that the loss foots up forty thousand dollars. The hotel was new, of brick, three stories high, with new furniture. Most of the latter was burned. The insurance on the hotel was only six thousand dollars.

The store and stock of goods of S. G. Brice, at Waco, Cleveland county, were burned Monday night. The railroad depot and other buildings were saved with difficulty. Brice's loss on stock is about eight thousand dollars. Insurance amounts to five thousand. The fire was caused by the explosion of a lamp.

The Boiler Exploded.

The Boller Exploded.

UNION CITY, Tenn., April 19.—[Special.]—
This morning this city was thrown into the wildest excitement by the explosion of the engine in the bathrooms of Jerry Johnson, the barber. Three men, Sam Ford, a white man, who was waiting for a bath, Jerry Johnson, the proprietor, and a colored boy who attended to the bathrooms, were badly but not seriously hurt. The glass in the windows were broken, and the walls, which are of brick, are badly cracked. The boller went through the ceiling, breaking the joists and smashing the ceiling of the second floor.

Pulled Out of Its Socket,

Murfreesboro, Tenn., April 19.—[Special.] This afternoon at about 4 o'clock, Leopold Softiantino, who works for W. B. Earthman & Soffiantino, who works for W. B. Earthman & Co., in attempting to untwist a belt running from the engine of the cut saw to the grindstone, had his right arm twisted off near the shoulder. His hand was caught in the twist in the belt, and he was pulled up to the engine where his arm was twisted around the small belt wheel on the engine until it broke the bone and flesh and pulled out near the socket.

A Female Robber. A Female Robber.

RALEIGH. N. C., April 19.—[Special.]—In Wayne county last Monday, a singular robbers was committed. A sick negro, named Bruton, was waited upon by a sout negro woman. Bruton was careless in displaying quite a sum of money, and saying it was his own. The woman went away and returned dressed in men's clothing and armed with a heavy bludgeon. She made at Bruton, knocked him down and going to the hiding place where he kept his money, robbed him of it all. She then field and it is believed is daring enough to attempt other robberies. The case is one never before known in this state.

A Woman Seeks Office.

COLUMBIA, S. C., April 19.—[Special.]—Miss Eliza A. Garner, of Union county, has made some-thing of a sensation by announcing herself as a candidate for school commissioner of that county, and promising to devote the salary of six hundred dollars to the support of the schools. But the sensation is spoiled by the fact that under the constitution of South Carolina a woman cannot hold the office of school commissioner.

Two Negroes Lynched. NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 19.—Isaac Kirk-patrick and wife, both colored, were taken from their cabin about five miles from Gallatin, last night, by a band of men. The woman was hanged and the man shot through the brain. Upon all sides the deed is condemaed by all law-abiding citizens. They were suspected of incendiarism.

INFATUATED WITH A CONVICT. A Handsome Woman Throws Herself Away.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 19—[Special.]— Tonight developed the missing links in a mysterious elopement case that puzzled everybody for several days, owing to the fact that no one would say a word or give any information as to who the parties were. Little by little the story has been secured, and it is a strange one.

The elopement of one of the handsomest married women in Nashville with an ex-convict of unprepossing appearance. The woman was formerly Emma Marion, of Kentucky, but who was married to a Mr. Cooney, and lived until two or three years ago at Livington, Ky. Then they moved to Nashville, and a year ago Cooney died of aneurism of the aorta. In a few weeks she married a stone mason named Fry, but they got along badly, and a month ago they separated.

About the first of March, a man apparently about thirty years of age, appeared at the residence of a lady in this city, who has a select number of boarders, and asked if he could obtain board there. He was recommended by a personal friend of the lady, and was received. During the two weeks he staid there he had little to say, but conversed intelligently, and seemed well posted on general topics. He said that his name was Shrewsburg. He complained that the meal hours didn't suit him and left, saying that he was going to a boarding house on Cherry street, where he had boarded before.

Last Saturday, the door-bell rang, and when t was answered, the lady beheld her former boarder, Shrewsburg. He was not alone. Beside him stood a handsome woman, dressed in black silk. She was a blende, and seemingly about 20 years of age. Shrewsburg introduced the lady as Miss Crawford, and stated that the object of his visit was to obtain board for the young lady, whom he represented as his cousin. She was given a

The lady of the house noticed that on the trunk was the address: "Mrs. Emma Cooney, Livingston, Ky," and asked how she came by that trunk. The reply from "Miss Crawford" was that the trunk belonged to her sister. The lady's suspicions were at once aroused. At the supper table the mysterious boarder had little to say. She wanted her meals sent to her room Sunday, but this was declined. Sunday afternoon warning was brought that some body was hunting for her, and an hour later Shrewsburg called for her, got her trunk, and they were driven rapidly away.

Where they went and their real names only came out tonight. It is now known that they are in New Orleans. The woman's aged mother is here from Kentucky in searth of her, and nearly crazed by grief, but as there is no charge made against them, it is unknown whether any steps will be taken towards apprehending them.

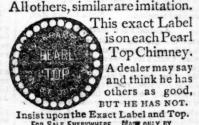

Run Over By An Engine. SELMA, Ala., April 19.—[Special.]—The dummy engine and two cars ran over a negro boy, Henry Alterman, here on Broad street this evening, killing him instantly. The body presented a ghastly spectacle after the accident. The legs were literaly torn to atoms, the left hand cut off, the face totally crushed, rendering the counterpage, unpresquighted. the left hand cut off; the face totally crushed, rendering the countenance unrecognizable. Pieces of flesh and brains were strewn along the track. The boy was stealing a ride on the front lumper of the engine. It was going forward. The boy jumped off and immediately thrown under the wheels. The coroner's inquest held over the body rendered a verdict that the boy came to his death by being run over. The accident resulted out of no negligence of the train hands.

FLUSHED FACES AND WEAK BODIES. Whyso Many Americans at This Season of the Year are Dull, Stupid and Depressed-A Revelation of Importance. A Revelation of Importance.

"What an immense number of cushed faces you have in New York," said a prominent Englishman at the Victoria hotel recently. His impression was that Americans were great drinkers, but he did no realize that at this season of the year the thic k, black heavy and sluggish blood, which has been accumulating in the body during the winter, flushes the face, gives a dull, heavy feeling to the system, and interferes with both work and pleasure. The blood in the spring time is full of poison. Humors acids face, gives a dull, heavy feeling to the system, and interferes with both work and pleasure. The blood in the spring time is full of poison. Humors, acids, and various other death-destroying substances are in the blood, and they must be removed or disease and death will be the result. It was formerly the custom of the grandmothers in the country to give the children liberal doses of sulphur and molasses to cleanse the blood in the spring time; but this has become an old-fashioned, and even foolish thing, for it does not cleanse the system. The most advanced physicians and scientists of Europe and also of America have sought for a simple and healthful remedy for thick, sluggish and poisoned blood, and from the mass of claimants Carlsbad Water has preminently taken the lead. It thins, cools, purilies and really reforms the blood. Not only this, but it tones the system up in a powerful and natural way, and furnishes a natural remedy for bringing about natural results. The writtenstatement of hundreds of the leadin; physicians of America could be furnished on this subject were it required, but it is generally admitted by the most profound thinkers that although Carlsbad Water has been known to the world for over five hundred years it is, if possible, more powerful and efficient today than it was five centuries ago. Messrs Eisner & Mendelson Co., sole agents for Carlsbad Water in America, 6 Earclay street.) report a wonderful increase in the popularity of Carlsbad Water, which is sold universally by all deslers, and the most prominent people in this country are taking and using it constantly.

ATLANTA, GA., APRIL 20, 1888.

Gilmore's Jubilee Last Night. The people of Atlanta never heard such music as was rendered by Gilmore's band last night. To say that the audience was wild with delight is not to overstate the case. Almost every piece was favored with a recall. Mr. Gilmore appeared to give in response to encores a more popular drift of music than he had been willing to put upon the formal programme. The encores were, therefore, the gems of the evening.

Every citizen of Atlanta who can spare dollar ought to attend the jubilee to-night. It is really an opportunity that will not occur again in years. Those who cannot spare a dollar should, by all means, go to the matinee concert this afternoon, the admission to which is fifty cents. It is something to sit in front of a band that has played amid tumultuous applause in every capital in Europe, and that holds the honor of being the best musical organization in the world. The music itself, however, excels the repution of the band, and is simply perfect. Let everybody go out today and tonight, and hear this incomparable band this incomparable programme. The selections are not such as appeal to the cultured ear alone, but are popular. The solos are in the hands of artists of worldwide reputation, and an evening with Gilmore is simply a revelation of delight.

THE death of Mr. A. S. Abell, of the Baltimore Sun, removes one of the most useful journalists of our time. He was not only an amiable gentleman and a sagacious business man, but a wise conservator of public morals. His loss will be severely felt in Baltimore.

Traveller's in a Bad Fix.

Just about one year ago a number of Georgians visited Europe, and before going provided themselves with letters of credit on American Exchange in Europe. European travel last year was the heav icst ever known, and the Exchange did a thriving business in issuing credits to European tourists on its various correspondents throughout Europe.

If the Georgians and other Americans who went to Europe last year with the Exchange letters of credit in their pockets had postponed their trip until this time, and were now away and similarly provided with funds to defray expenses, they would probably be cabling home for means with which to continue their tour or get back.

The American Exchange in Europe is fmancially embarrassed, and those who hold letters of credit on it are in a fair way of losing the uncollected amount of their investments. Hundreds of Americans are now in Europe with these letters as their only funds; of course many of them will cable for assistance, and will be inconvenienced only by the loss of a few dollars, but there are no doubt many of moderate means who have no accessible capital and who will be greatly inconvenced by the failure of cash its credits. In many such cases the representatives of the United States will probably be called upon to come to the rescue, and the government will see to it that

Its unfortunate citizens get back. The exact cause of the failure of the Exchange is not known. Senator Hawley, of Connecticut, is president, and refuses to talk about it, as he says that he is not yet ready to talk. The manager of the Exchange, Mr. Henry F. Gillig, is blamed most for the trouble, and is being severely criticized. He is now on the ocean, returning to London, his headquarters, and it is said will be arrested when he arrives at Liv-

In the meantime, Americans are landing daily in Europe and Europeans are arriving in this country with letters of credit to the correspondents of the Exchange in both countries, and are horrified to find that their letters are worthless.

John Sherman's Proclamation.

In behalf of the democratic party of the country we extend our congratulations to John Sherman for the masterly manner in which he holds himself and his party to the bloody-shirt issue. His speech in the senate last Wednesday, delivered while the united and harmonious democrats of Louisana were practically burying the republican party, is an assurance that that corrupt organization proposes to renew, in the most violent manner, the campaign of sectionalism, slander and prejudice.

Mr. Sherman's speech is more than usually significant. The senator is the most prominent candidate for the republican nomination now before the people, and his remarks are undoubtedly intended to body forth the republican programme. To the extent of Mr. Sherman's prominence as a possible candidate for president, his speech is an authoritative announcement, and it will be received as such by the whole

The old campaign is to be fought over; frantic appeals are to be made to whatever spark of sectionalism may have survived this era of peace and good-will; the old embers of strife and prejudice are to be fanned into flame; and the people of the north are to be told again that the war has been fought in vain as long as the white people of the south are permitted to control their own affairs.

Just what the more reasonable republicans propose to do about it we do not know. me who have heretofore been most bitter in their attacks on the south have recently come to the conclusion that the prospects of republican success will be materially improved by burying the bloody-shirt and the sues with which it is identified.

Prominent among these are the editor of the Iowa State Register and the editor of the Philadelphia Press. They are recent converts, but it is safe to say that they have merely fallen into line with the great body of republicans. Whatever excuse there might have been in the past for waving the bloody shirt, there can be none now. As to the suppression of the negro yote, Governor Bullock, of Georgia, who is as good a republican as either Blaine or Sherman, and who is thoroughly familiar with every phase of the situation in the south, has recently stated in the strongest terms that the negro is as free to vote in the south as in the north, and that nothing prevents him from voting but his own indifference and apathy This is testimony of a character that no northern republican can successfully contradict. The negro votes if he wants to, but, in a general way, he doesn't vote, and the John Sherman plan is to send the federal army down here and drive him to the polls at the point of the bayonet. Mr. Sherman's speech will operate to consolidate the democratic party still more closely, and it means the election of Mr.

THE republican attacks on Governor Hill, of New York, only serve to make him more popular with the people.

An Ill-Fated Emperor. The case of the Emperor Frederick is

His reign, although one of the briefest in history, will be gratefully remembered by his subjects. Frederick mounted the throne with one supreme thought in his mindpeace. When his country needed his sword it always flashed in the foremost rank of her charging legions. He led the Germans to Paris. He won a doubtful day at Sadowa. Yet his fame as a soldier never made him love war for its own sake. The death of this chivalric, amiable and virtuous ruler will be a calamity to Europe. The son who will succeed him has a passion for military glory, and it will be almost impossible to preserve the peace of Europe when he sways the destinies of Germany and Boulanger directs the affairs of France.

The outlook on the other side of the water is indeed gloomy, and the day of Frederick's death will be a sad one for Germany, and perhaps for France also. THE crowning act of Roscoe Conkling's political career was his contemptuous refusal o aid in the effort to fraudulently seat Hayes in the president's chair. Ir will be a long time before we hear the ### last of the Mills bill in the house. Brazil and the Negroes.

Just at the time when the scheme of negro emigration from this country to Brazil is being seriously discussed, the new Brazilian ministry announces as a part of its programme the emancipation of all the slaves in the empire during the present

It may strike some that this changed condition of affairs will make it more pleasant for the negro colonists, if they decide to try their luck in this strange land. But this does not follow. The advent of the colonists is regarded unfavorably by the American residents of Brazil, and the Rio News speaks out against the scheme in the following decided language:

It is our candid opinion that there is not one sin gle country in South America where they will be reated as well as in the United States, even after admitting the justice of every complaint which they may advance to vindicate this projected exodus. If they come to Brazil, the result will be as fol lows: They will find the coast districts unhealthy and all the good lands taken up by large proprietors. The Amazon valley comprises great areas of flood-plains which are extremely unhealthy and are very unsuitable for agricultural purposes. If they go to the high lands of the southern tributafrom civilization and the world's markets as though they were in the center of Africa. There is, no regular overland communication with scaports of the Atlantic coast, and communication by the way of the Tapajos and Xingu is long, broken by rapids, and is not yet opened by navigation lines.

The country is not settled, except by wild Indians, some of whom are known as cannibals. Cotton can be produced as cheaply in Brazil as in United States, even near the coast; production in the interior, therefore, s absolutely out of the question. Tobac-to and sugar, also, could not be produced there to compete with the coast districts. In fact, there is not one single agricultural product that they can expect to cultivate profitably under present confli-tions. Without railways, steamship lines and mar-kets and without government protection against Indians and lawless characters, the chances of their making even a bare living are very slight. They cannot expect help from Brazil, for the cour try is poor and already overburdened with beggars and perasites, and they should not expect help from the United States whose protection they pro-pose to discard. With such a future before them, the chances are that they will starve, or be de graded to the level of the savages about the The point about the cannibals ought to

Other things, too, shouldbe taken into con sideration. The newly emancipated negroes will all be seeking employment, and they will be compelled to accept low wages. It is no time for strange laborers to throw themselves upon the market. After all, why should any considerable number of our black fellow citizens think of leaving the freest, most prosperous country under the sun to seek homes else where? One thing they should certainly do before they take such a hazardous course -they should first ascertain whether or not their change of base would better their condition. With the light thrown upon the situation by the Rio News, it is safe to say that Brazil has nothing desirable to offer to either white or black immigrants. Ir is stated that Mr. Robert Louis Stevenson is still in bad health. Why, in the name of all that is sensible, doesn't somebody advise him to come to the Piedmont region of Georgia, where Dr. Felix Oswald cured

Marrying in Haste.

The Philadelphia Ledger, commenting on the career of the blind bigamist, Fleming, whose case and whose wives have been fig uring in our police courts, suggests that women who are so eager to marry an entire stranger are not entitled to the sympathy of the public.

This is undoubtedly true. There is no reason or excuse why any woman should have been deceived by Fleming. His whole history could have been uncovered in a few days, as, in fact, it was uncovered by means of a telegram sent from Atlanta by a correspondent of some western paper. Fleming's career is a very curious one, for it demonstrates anew, and with startling emphasis, the case and facility (so to speak) with which women may be imposed on. Here is a man, blind and apparently helpless, who has found a fond and foolish voman in every community in which he has ever set foot.

If the accounts are all true, he is a very ordinary person indeed. He appears to lack every quality that women are supposed to seek for in the men of their choice, but he overcomes all difficulties. Wherever he goes, he marries, and that right speedily. Only a part of his history is known, and yet it seems to be a fact that he has wedded half a dozen women.

In Atlanta, he met a young woman, took a walk with her and she consented to marry him, and we have no doubt that this facility has marked his whole career. He deserted one of his western wives because she had no nose, and a day or two after married a woman because she had a prominent

The whole subject, however, is a very serious one. There is no woman in this wide world so poor and so friendless that she must needs wreck herself by marrying an adventurer. There is no reason why any sensible woman should be deceived. They have at hand the telegraph and the postoffice, and there is no man so obscure that his whole history cannot be uncovered in a few days. But there will always be women ready to be deceived. This was the fate of Eve, and it will continue to be the fate of many of her descendants.

Honest people all over the country are wondering why the Louisiana republicans attempted to resurrect Warmoth and make him governor.

MAYOR LEWIS, OF OLEAN, New York, has astounded his charming wife and two children and disgusted his friends, by eloping with Miss Catherine Hodge. Mr. Lewis, in taking his rash step, abandoned a good home and a fine position, and has literally gone to the dogs. He could not have had more than $200 when he left, and it is thought that he will find it lifficult to go very far. His singular conduct is ascribed by some to insanity, and by others to his habit of steady drinking. The woman in the case is young and pretty, but not remarkably bright.

JOHN SHERMAN HAS developed a weak ness in his home support which has proven very annoying to the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette, his organ. Among the delegates to the Chicago convention from Cincinnati is a Dr. Graydon, who announced in response to calls after his election that he would Sherman as long as there was, in his own judgment, a chance for his nomination. He then proceeded to eulogize Blaine in the warmest terms, and clearly showed that, though he would vote for Sherman at first, that the Maine statesman was really his first choice and that nothing would please him better than to give him his support. The Commercial Gazette excoriates Dr. Graydon, and says that if he had made the speech before the election he never would have been chosen.

THE REV. MR. BUTTS was billed for a le ure on "Snakes," at Norfolk, Va., the other night. As it is a tolerably wet town the at-endance was scattering. A TELEGRAPH POLE is a good thing to lean against, but sometimes it is deadly. A boy in New York who was leaning against one, the other day, was instantly killed by a current of electricity. The current came from an electri wire which had crossed a telegraph wire, and was communicated to the youngster by mean of a loose wire wound about the pole.

nator Brown our Republican Senat EDITORS CONSTITUTION: An extended arappears with this heading, "Our Republican Sen

It struck the average Georgian as late in the day to utter such a forciorn cry as that, and but for th reputation of Hon. Mr. Barnett, as an honotabl man, the whole screed would pass for an unprovoked as well as malicious attack upon a person who sim-ply exercised his senatorial privilege of *poaking on the tariff as his conscience dictated. Mr. Barnett's abuse of Senator Brown, and the uncalled for attack on Dr. Lyndon in the democratic primary of Clark county, by some pets of the internal revenue service, would indicate, that folly has siered upon certain would be leaders in the democratic party and such folly will bear a fruitful barvest of diasterunless the would be's are promptly remains to the rear before the meeting of the delegates to the rear before the meeting of the delegates to the national convention to nominate Mr. Cleveland for his own successor. If the party is made responsible for such utterances, nobody need be surprised to see a dismal failing off in votes, as well as influence, at the party detection. the next election, for there is a limit to forbeara ce.

If your correspondent understands aright, Mr.
Cleveland has no warmer supporter for his present osition than Senator Brown, and this is emph by a fact known to many in Georgia, that some of the president's loudest advocates at the present time were then in favor of Mr. Bayard, and very pronounced in such a choice. It is also understood hat Mr. Cleveland has no warmer friend now that enator Brown, aithough the senator is not prepared ogo to the length of the Clarke county democracy (of the internal revenue stripe), or to place Mr Cleveland above his conscience—policy and free will in the matter of party fealty-or the dictates o nest judgment. Senator Brown was elected to his present position

Senator Brown we elected to his present posit in the senate, by the democratic party of Georg and he was re-elected, by what stands for a una mous vote of the same party, six years later. If he is "our republican senator," he was certainly placed in office by a solid democratic vote in the legislature. Surely Mr. Barnett does not intend to fing mud merely for the fun of mud throwing, and he is tiable to be misjudged himself, if he does not qualify or retract this designation; for the tacts go to show that indulged in the past, nothing is more certain, and Hon. Mr. Barnett knows it, than that the organized democratic party of Georgia condoned them all and made their highest and fullest and freest choice of Senator Brown for his last term in the United States senate, without dissent or controversy. He may no represent either Mr. Barnett's democracy or Mr Larry Gantt's demo-racy, and no discredit is im-plied to either, but he certainly does represent the great united party in Georgia, by a big majority. Senator Colquitt himself is the man who selected him as the very finest representative of Georgia de-mocracy. He guaranted Governor Brown to be a simon pure article, with a most reliable trade mark, without discount and payable on demand. There is no such thing as getting be aind this public certificate of character to hit a onck-handed lick at the senator's politics now. No matter what his politics are or ever have been, they were quite good enough for Governor Colquitt nd Governor Gordon and a host of other lesser lights who, perhaps, cling to Mr. Cleveland now, in ceived into the democratic party. Governor Gord was even willing to give up to him a seat in the senate "because the democratic party had enjoyed the use of his money in frequent elections," and Governor Colquitt, whose duty it was to select a new senator for Georgia, said he could find no man from Dade to Chatham who was the equal of Sena tor Brown for the position, in either capacity of party fealty. Will Mr. Barnett listen to hear some hing drop just here? The general public, especially those who did not agree with either of these distinguished gentlement that time, are amazed to see the fight inaugurate by Senator Colquitt's friends at this juncture agains Sanator Brown. There seems to be a good sized cat in that meal tub, judging by the chemence and persistency of the newspaper tirade just when it would appear that Senator Brown is the man who, being secure for some time to come in his senatorial seat, might be able to help or hurt ot er parties not quite so secure in a coveted place or at least who have to make a run for it shortly Dr. Lyndon is also a man above reproach, and on whom Georgia democrats would much dislike to see persecuted, yet he was whipsawed by a packed con vention in the most outrageous way, and the bold doctrine was there announced that no man should be allowed to speak or vote in a convention who party but the platform and the policy, and any man who tailed to bend the knee at the appointed hour met he cast into a den of lions forthwith without respite or a hearing. Truly these internal revenue papsuckers have grown great on the tax money o the people. The next movement will likely produce a knout or bow-string the honest people of the who are willing to vote for Mr. Cleveland u difficulties, but whose self-respect forbids anything like such lick-spittle sup prt. The president must feel ashamed of such advocacy, for it is so besmeared with servile adulation as to disgust both friends and foes, at home and atroad.

Mr. Barnett may rest assured that Senator Brown is no spring chicken in Georgia politics, and if any man in the democratic party can do its general business, and twist its politicians around and about his little finger at his own leisure, that man is Joseph Emerson Brown. He may be "our republican senator," but he bosses the democratic gang, from the junior senator down to the smallest corporal, and the internal revenue bawlers will have reason to agree with me before a twelve-month will pass away. A few swallows do not make a summer, and it provokes a smile to see Hon. Mr. Barnett take a free-trade departure on "our republican senator," and it really makes one sorry to see friend Larry free-trade departure on "our republican senator," and it really makes one sorry to see friend Larry rush so hastily upon the bucklers of this great leader of Georgia democracy after the style of that late Clark county meeting.

Against Such Methods.

April 19 .- Editors Constitution: In von report of the proceedings of the state convention of gesterday, I notice my name as one of the alternate elegates elected to the national republican con vention. I beg the use of your colu while I am very much obliged to the convenust respectfully decline. If the place is honor there is certainly nothing else in it. be an honor, even if it were a delegate instead of honor there is certainly nothing else in it. For it to be an honor, even if it were a delegate instead of alternate, there ought to be something like unanimity and the fairest methods in the selection.

I am informed that there was great lack of harmony in the convertion, and that there is much disablashection with the result and the manner in which the delegates were elected. If this be true as to the alternates, since both were chosen in the same way. For me to accept the proffered honor would tend to sonction the methods said to have been resorted to in the selection, and hence Ishall have to decline. These methods and practices I understand to have been about such as it is said have characterized the course and po icy of the party organization in Georgia for the past several years; and, just so long as this kept up there will never be any republican party in Georgia worthy the name.

It seems to me that if a political organization is to have any merit or success there must be nothing unfair or unsound in its principles or methods, and the cardinal principles should be to have the organization begin at the bottom with the people, the electors in their primarics and proceed upward; and not, as seems to be the rule here in Georgia, begin at the top with a few high officers who seek to secure organization by issuing orders downward. Respectfully,

WALKS AND TALKS.

"What do you think of the third party?" was asked Colonel George Adair yesterday.
"I think it is unfortunate about this time. Let me tell you, young man, we ought all to be rich and handsome, and sober and good, but we are not. We handsome, and sober and good, but we are not. We have got to take things as we find them and regulate them the best we can. The third party is unfortunate. I'll tell you why. There are thousands of prohibitionists in the democratic party who think too much of their fealty, to that party to quit it and take the risk of joining a new party, and there are thousands of prohibitionists in the republican party who are in precisely the same boat. It is a big risk to quit an old established business, which you are used to and which you have gotten a good living out of, so to speak, to go into a new business, which may and then again may not be a good thing. How'll that do for an illustration?'

Colonel A. E. Buck, while a pronounced temperance advocate and prohibitionist, is against the third party movement. He thinks the question of prohibition ought to be kept out of politics.

Some of the third party men, by the way, are considerably disheartened at the slim showing made so far. Out of four thousand prohibitionists in Atlanta, less than four hundred have joined them

The Rev. J. H. Grant, the colored delegate from Carroll to the late republican state convention, talked very freely yesterday about party matters,

"Deveaux beat me as chairman of the convention, said Grant, 'because it was well known that I am a prohibitionist. I am satisfied that a majority or very nearly a majority of the delegates were on my side, but the opposition resorted from the first to buildozing tactics, and they downed us.

"You noticed the fate of Colonel Hargrove's esolution favoring the third party? Well, they were unwilling to have it tested, and they managed to shove it aside upon the pretext that there was no committee to refer it to. It was an unfortunate piece of business, as most of the delegates sympa-thized with the third party movement. "Of course I am a republican, and I am with the convention in favoring John Sherman for the presidency, first, last and all the time, but here in Georgia I think that Sam Small's party is the party for us to act with.

"It is useless to disguse the fact that Sam Small's third party is republican enough to suit the masses of the Georgia republicans. It suits me, and do not mind saying that I am heartily for it, and it is my opinion that a majority of the delegates to the late convention will agree with me." Grant is a bright mulatto, a well educated man, a good talker and very popular among the republicans. His strong third party talk is signifi-cant, and it indicates the kind of material that Mr. Small's organization is likely to be composed of.

Mr. P. S. Gilmore, the famous director, was a warm personal friend and a great admirer of Judge Lochrane. Both were natives of Ireland and there always existed between the two men, each eminent in his chosen profession, the strongest tonds of

He was holding a parlor rifie in his hands, and the little negroes dropped their wood and started off. It is with great pleasure that THE CONSTITUTE TION announces that the public are soon to be al-forded an opportunity of again hearing the ladies' quartette. It will be remembered that on the occa-sion of their debut, in February last, the extreme inclemency of the weather prevented many from at-tending who would otherwise have gone. Of the large and appreciative audience who did her that performance, it may be safely asserted, there went away not one who had not been both delighted and surprised at the remarkable proficiency of the singers and the bewitching beauty and variety of their selections. Afterwards the quartette went to Athens for one performance and fairly took by storm the refined and appreciative people of the classic-city. The quartette is now booked at DeGive's for Friday evening, April 27th, and Saturday matinee, April 28th instant, to be assisted by Mr. Constantin Sternberg, Mr. Sumner Salter and Mr. Alex W.

GLORIOUS GILMORE.

The Jubilee Opens Brilliantly and Successfully.

e Thousand Enthusiastic Listeners-Wonderful Performance—Every-body Charmed—What is Said.

Atlanta is full of music today. The very mosphere is surcharged with harmony and he sweetest melody is wafted on every breeze. In fact, the people of Atlanta are melody mad.

And well might they be, for is not the greatest band in the world here to dispense the concord of sounds for their delectation? Yes, Gilmore is here with his great band. Until last night the people of Atlanta knew this band only by ion; now they have a personal knowledge of its greatness.

"The half was not told," said General P. M.
B. Young, as he left Piedmont parklast night. B. Young, as no left Floramont parkpast night.
"I have heard much good music in my time," he continued, "but I never listened to more entrancing harmony. Gilmore's band is incomparable. It can produce finer effects than even Theodore Thomas with his grand orchestra can make. I tell you that such an entertainment as that given tonight is epoch in the progress of music in Atlanta. While the crowd was large tonight, I am confident the one tomorrow afternoon and tomorrow night will be much larger. I would not miss one of the concerts for anything. I will be on hand every time."

"I am really astonished at the great excel-lence of the performance," said Professor W. B. Seals. "Of course I am aware of the high reputation of the band, but when I heard it tonight I could scarcely contain myself. Why, for anybody to miss this rare treat is a shame.

for anybody to miss this rare treat is a shame. There ought to be 10,000 people present at every one of the concerts. Not only is Gilmore's band great, but the artists he brings with him are wonderfully fine. The singers certainly are equal to any in this country. And what a marvelous player is Liberatti. The whole thing is grand beyond description."

Mr. Charles Beerman: "I am more than pleased; I am delighted. Such music I have not heard in the south. Everybody in Atlanta ought to be there. You can't say too much about Gilmore."

Governor Gordon said, as he quitted the building at the close of the concert: "I have not adjectives with which to properly describe the building at the close of the concert: "I have not adjectives with which to properly describe the beauty of the music given us tonight. The entertainment was most enjoyable in every regard. It is hard to decide which was the best thing of the evening. All the numbers were excellent. I was particularly pleased with the tenor soloist, and I regretted that he did not respond to the encore. His voice is a pure and sweet one, and he sings superbly. Every feature of the concert deserves praise, and it would be difficult to employ extravagant language in reporting the performance."

"Certainly I enjoyed it." said Mr. L. DeGive.
"I was most pleased with the William Tell overture, but everything was first-class. All lovers of music should hear fillnore's great band."

Governor McDaniel: "I do not remember a finer entertainent. I came prepared for some-thing fine and I was more than pleased. It is thing fine and I was more than pleased. It is wonderful."

Mr. E. H. Thornton: "It was grand. No language can adequately describe it. I never passed a more delightful evening."

Professor Charles Wurm: "It is a matter of surprise to me that this band can play the overture with such smoothness. The manner in which the overture to William Tell was given, at such furious tempo, is astonishing. This is certainly a great combination."

Mr. L. Sneith, of Augusta: "I came all the way from Augusta to hear Liberatti play his cornet. I am more than repaid for my expense and loss of time. He is beyond doubt the greatest of all cornet players."

Colonel W. H. Rhett: "I am both delighted and astonished."

Professor Bischoff: "Words cannot express

Colonel W. H. Rhett: "I am both delighted and astonished."

Professor Bischoff: "Words cannot express the greatness of Gilmore's band."

The above are samples of the enthusiastic expressions which were heard on all sides. It is perfectly safe to declare that not one person failed to get twice as much enjoyment as he bargained for and twice his money's worth. The verdict was unanimous, and it was—"The greatest band in the world. The best music I ever heard." Such enthusiasm as was shown several times last night was never before exhibited in Atlanta. Staid out citizens were so excited that they yelled themselves hoarse and shook their handkerchiefs. For an encore the band played 'Pay Day on the plantation," which produced the wildest excitement. "Dixie" and "Yankee Doodle" almost brought down the house. Gilmore was generous in responding to encores. He is the most accommodating director living. He is the great near the same transport and his cores. He is the most accommodating director living. He is full of good nature, and his whole soul is thrown into his work. He is beloved by every member of his band. The performance last night lasted exactly two hours.

The concert opened with Richard Wagner's overture to "Tannhauser." This is a noble production. It contains and combines the idea of Wagner's drama in two melodies; one expressing the religious and the other the voluptious side of human aspirations, which, to use Lizat's expression, "are here placed in juxtaposition, and find in the finale their equation." From a musician's point of view it is evident that Wagner's themes and his treatment of them, are absolutely original, and show a mastery in all technicalities, such as no other composer can lay claim to, but this side of the matter, though important, is not the main one. The overture is first and foremost a poet's work, and must be valued for the amount of poetical perception it evinces, rather than for the astounding ingenuity displayed in the presentation thereof. There was a legend current among the people of Germany in the middle ages, of a certain mountain in Thuringia, into the interior of which Venus had retired, and from which she made nocturnal expeditions for the purpose of ensnaring the unwary. A knight and minstrel, named Tannhauser, is said to have been enticed therein, and to have tarried a whole year with the goddess. The overture to the opera "Tannhauser" describes this event, and begins with a chant of pligrims, which is first heard in the distance, then approaches, swells, and at length recedes. Twilight—the last strain of the pilgrim chant dies out. As night draws on, magical phenomena present themselves; a fragrant, roseate mist arises, voluptuous shouts, of joy are wafted to our ears, we descry the dizzy motion of a licentious dance. These are the seductive, magic spells of the "Venusberg." Allured thereby, Tannhauser approaches. Exultingly, he invokes the spell with his jubilant love-song. Wild shouts respond to his call, he is enveloped in the roseate cloud, and its enrapturing fragrance entrances and intoxicates? him. He sees the goddes went sefore him, and burning with fierce desire he raises his song in her praise. Boisterous shouts ing to hear it given in this quaint and soulstirring manner.

Madame Annie Louise Tanner sang an aria for soprano—"Lo! Hear the Gentle Lark!"
by Bishop, and Mr. Fred Lax played the flute obligato. This was a charming performance.
The lady possesses a very high soprano voice, of considerable flexibility and sweetness. Her method of vocalization is altogether above reproach. Her presence is attractive and she caught the audience before she had sung a dozen notes. The flute obligato and the accompaniment by the band added greatly to the song. The audience became wild and clamored for an encore. The singer responded by singing "Coming Thro' the Rye." This she rendered in an arch manner, completely cattivating the crowd.

The chorus sang the "Gloria" from Mozart's Twelfth[Mass, unexpectedly well. The members of the band were evidently surprised that Atlanta could produce so excellent a chorus. The voices kept together and the accompaniment formed a solid background.
The audience showed its appreciation by indulging in loud applanse, which was long continued.

What a noble singer is Tagliapietra! Age dulging in loud applanse, which was long continued.

What a noble singer is Tagliapietra? Age seems to improve his voice, which is as fresh as it ever was. For ten years he has been a favorite and has sung in all parts of the world. There are several qualities which are conspicious in his voice. First the breadth and fullness; second, the purity and strength; third, the matchless fluency of his delivery, and the flexibility of his voice. Then his method is faultless, and everything he essays is given in a nusicianly way. There arefew more beautiful songs than Faure's "Palm Branches," and he showed good taste in selecting it. He caught the andience, and his reception amounted to an ovation.

The band played next the "Valse Caprice," by Auton Reubenstein. This was composed for the piano, but is exceedingly effective as an orchestral piece. Its arrangement denotes the master musician. It is a rolicking valse, taken in quick tempo. It pleased the audience to use extravagant language. He is assuredly an artist of exceptional powers.

Signor Liberati made his first appearance before an Atlanta audience. As soon as he appeared with cornet in hand, the applause was vociferous. He played an original composition of great beauty. In the rendering of this he displayed marvelous powers of execution and a refined taste. He is assuredly one of the greatest of living players. The audience was wrought up to a high pitch of anthusiasm and insisted upon an encore.

was wrought up to a high pitch of enthusiasm and insisted upon an encore.

Next came one of the great numbers of the concert—the ever fresh and ever popular "Overture to William Tell." A few words about this great work and its author. Gioacchino Antonio Rossini was born at Pesaro, in the Romagna, February 29th, 1792, and died at Passey near, Paris' November 18th, 1863. Passy, near Paris, November 13th, 1863. A Passy, near Paris, November 13th, 1863. At fifteen years of age he went to study at the Lyceum of Bologna, his teacher in counterpoint being Padre Mattei. His first great success was scored in "Tancredi," first performed in Venice in 1813, and all his other familiar operas were written within sixteen years following. After "Guillaume Tell," written in 1829, while he was director of the Italian opera at Paris he gave up active composition and 1829, while he was director of the Italian opera at Paris, he gave up active composition and rested upon his laurels, which are still the greenest and freshest that have decked the head of an Italian opera composer of this century. This overture is unquestionably one of his masterpieces, and has become almost his sole representative in the modern concert repertoire. The opening andante, so exquisitely instrumented for five violocelli and divided double basses illustrates the renowand neares. instrumented for five violocelli and divided double basses, illustrates the repose and peace of the Alpine solitudes. It was not believed that this movement could be given with proper effect without the full complement of stringed instruments. This idea wasprovedlerroneous, for the substitution of the wood-wind instruments rather added to rather than detracted from the effect. In the allegro, this calm is broken by the raging of a storm which runs its angry course amid lightnings and thunders, till the clouds clear away, the sun breaks forth, and from the mountain sides are heard the notes of the "Ranz des Vaches." All is peace again; but soon, with the startling suddenness, trumpets sound a call to arms: the shepherd's pipe is abandoned for the patriot's sword; and pipe is abandoned for the patriot's sword; and the overture ends amid exultant notes of victhe overture ends amid exultant notes of vic-tory over oppression. All the beauty and grandeur of the work found effective interpre-tation in Gilmore's rendering. Never was this overture more brilliantly played. It evoked the most spontaneous and generous applause.

The next number was a triumph for the

The next number was a triumph for the chorus. The grand march and chorus in "Tannhauser"—"Hail, Bright Abode"—brought out the full strength of the chorus and taxed the skill of the instrumentalists. The combination was grand. The singers did their part well. Mr. Sumner Salter's face beamed with delight as they did their spirited work. They sang with precision and vim and entered into the spirit of the great composition. The orchestration of this is sin Wagner's most florid style, and the tone-coloring excited the admiration as well as the wonder of everybody.
This was thought one of the best things of the evening. Mr. Gilmore was so well pleased with the manner in which this chorus was with the manner in which this chorus was given that he complimented the singers.

The medley of popular airs which followed was irresistible. Many of the old familiar songs were introduced. Various comical effects, such as imitation of the bagpipe, were produced. This was a selection intended to please those who are not partial to classical music.

please those who are not partial to classical music.

The celebrated quartette from Rigoletto was rendered most artistically by Madame Mellini, Signorini Carlotta and Messrs. Turner and Tagliapietra. The rich accompaniment of the band added greatly to the effect. The voices of the singers formed aperfet quartette. This was indeed an enjoyable performance.

The concluding piece was an appropriate finale to the greatest musical entertainment evergiven in Atlanta. The grand scena from "Il Trovatore" was sung by the chorus, with full accompaniment by the band. But there were other and effective accessories. The concomitants were anvils and camnon. The anvil beaters were dressed in red uniform and were ranged on either side of the platform. One of the musicians occupied a seat among them.

ranged on either side of the platform. One of the musicians occupied a seat among them, and a table was before him. Wires were run from this table through the building and connecting with the cannon in the yard. The artillery accompanist played his part perfectly. The band opened, the singers joined in, then the anvils were heard, and then the cannon boomed. The operator at the table beat time, and at the right stroke touched the key and instantly the cannon fired. As the hammers struck the anvils the report of the cannon was heard. The time was exact. This combination capped the climax. People rose to their feet and cheered lustily. The piece came to an end amid the wildest huzzas of the multitude. As the crowd was dispersing, the band played impressively "Old Hundred." The first Gilmore concert was done.

A Great Success. The first concert given by Gilmore's great band was a pronounced success in every respect. The immense hall was nearly full of people. And it was a representative assemblage of Atlanta people. How many people were there? Surely, not less than 3,000. The crowd was transported from the city to the park and back again without delay or confu-sion. The schedule was operated without a hitch. Trains began leaving the carshed at half past six o'clock, and the last train for the park started at 8 o'clock. Every trip all the coaches were comfortably filled. The concert began at 8:15 o'clock and ended at 10:15. In less than an hour everybody had returned to the city. Notwithstanding the big crowd, there was no confusion, and everything glided

THIS AFTERNOON'S CONCERT.
It is almost certain that the attendance this afternoon will be larger than it was last night. The programme is replete with gems. It is detidedly superior to the one given last night. The band will play several of the finest pieces in its repertoire. The overture to "Semiramide" is a most attractive piece, fully equal to the William Tell overture. One of the grandest numbers will be the "Waking of the Lion," by DeKontski.

Perfect order was kept in the grounds last night, and no objectionable persons were admitted. It is important to go early this morning and secure your reserved seats from Chartle Howard. A TALK WITH MR. GILMORE, The Southern Tour a Grand Success—The Gentleman and the Lady of Music. The Southern Tour a Grand Success—The Gentleman and the Lady of Music.

"Our southern tour," said the great bandmaster last evening, "has been a grand success. We have been greeted by very large audiences everywhere, and our music has been received with great enthusiasm. This is true both of our classical and our popular airs. I am delighted with the way our Atlanta festival has opened. The arrangements seem to be perfect and for an opening night everything went off very smoothly.

Mr. Gilmore is 59 years of age and has been a bandmaster for 40 years. He is—but everybody has seen the lithographic portrait of him, and he is just like that.

"The orchestra," said Mr. Gilmore, in the course of a conversation, "is the lady of the musical world, while the military band is the gentleman. Thirty years ago this lady was a coarse, uncultivated woman. Theodore Thomas found her, educated her and cultivated her, until she became the lady that you part find her.

a coarse, uncultivated woman. Theodore Thomas found her, educated her and cultivated her, until she became the lady that you now find her. Mr. Thomas set out to make his orchestra the queen of the musical world, and he has done it. All right, but my military band is the king. Forty years ago this king was a street tramp. This lady of music is the embodiment of refinement and culture, but the gentleman—who is robust, strong and in every sense manly—is also capable of the most delicate feelings. The orchestra is the queen of music, but the military band is the king.

"New Orleans? Yes, we go to New Orleans and in a few weeks. The last time I was there was when I conducted a chorus of ten thousand school children, and a band of six hundred or seven hundred pieces, at the celebration of the inauguration of a civil governor of the state. The state had been under military rule, but was then passing under civil rule. The event was one long to be remembered. You have doubtless seen and read descriptions of that. Well, when we go back there we are to have a chorus composed in the main of those same children. Of course they are grown women and children now. I shall be very happy to be with them once more."

Mr. Gilmore is accompanied on his tour by Mrs. Gilmore and his daughter, Miss Gilmore. During their stay in Atlanta they occupy apartments at the Kimball.

For convalescents, especially females, and for all patients suffering from enfeebled digestion, a mild Tonic stimulant, one that contains just enough alcohol to stimulate the gastric follicles, and is at the same time nutritious in itself, would seem a most desirable remedy for routine use in every physician's practice, provided such a remedy is palatable enough to make it available for all classes of patients.

Just such a preparation it is claimed is the Concentrated Liquid Extract of Malt and Hops, which is now offered to the profession under the name of The "Best" Tonic, which has recently appeared on sale in most of our drug stores.

A trial will convince as to its palatability and price, and the certificate of analysis by Prof. E. G. Love, of New York city, seems to give unquestionable evidence of its therapeutic value.

Canadian Catarrh Cure Co.:

Gentlamen.—My wife was a great sufferer with Catarrh for over two years. She has been a little troubled ever since she was a child with the disease. About two years ago we were in Mississippi, and while there she was taken down with catarrhal fever; we had three of the best physicians we could get. They broke the fever and left her the worst ease of catarrh of the head I ever saw. Her nose ran profusely, and for a year I despaired of her ever getting well. I tried several doctors and they could hear of. I spent over $50 the past year for remedies, and all to no effect. At last it became so offensive that you could hardly remain where she was. I offered $1,000 to any doctor who would cure her (and that would have left us homeless), but I would not have cared for that if she could only be cured. We saw an advertisement in the Aflanta Constitution of "Canadian Catarrh Cure." and thought we would try it, and went to your office, when you gave my wife a small sample bottle of your remedy, and told us to come and get a large bottle when that was out. I bought the large bottle, and before she had used all of the bottle she was entirely well, and her health fully restored, and now does more work than any woman I know. She used the medicing over six months ago, and there has not been the dightest return or the disease. I hope everybody that has catarrh may find you and be cured. I am a traveling man and have told a great many of your wonderful cure. Yours truly.

THE CHICAGO MARKET. Features of the Speculative Movement in Fentures of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, April 19—[Special]—Business opened brisk on 'change this morning with a decided downturn in prices for cereals. Wheat was weaker on the curb, and opened ½c lower. Local selling on stop orders carried prices down another ½c, where the bottom for the day for May was reached at 70½c, or le under the close last night. From this point the price went to 80½c before eleven o'clock. After this second dip to *0½c May sold up to 81½c. At this point the big traders took hold, and another ½c was added during the closing minutes of the session, and before the afternoon a decidedly strong feeling preveiled, May closing at $2½c, or 2½c over the closing last night, a ra ugo of 3½c for the day. The forces at work appeared to be a revival of the crop scare, talk of delayed seeding in the northwest, etc. Corn was fairly active and rather unsettled. The opening sales were %c below the close yesterday, followed by a decline of ¼c. Upon the decline a followed by a decline of 4c. Upon the decline a better demand was developed, and the market recovered advancing 3c, reacted 3c, ruled firm, May Oats opened with a decline of 1/01/2c for future followed by a firmer market and a rally in prices. The final closing was 1/2 better for May. The provision trade was more active. Pork and short ribs were bought and sold freely. Larl was perticularly active under a good short demand and continued buying by foreign houses, and for the dif-ferent future deliveries prices at 1 o clock were 22/co above last night's closing. Short ribs advance 56 7/cc and pork 156_00c.

MAKES DAILY CONNECTION WITH THE S. F. & W. fast mail train at Callahan (connection sure) and with all other trains at Jacksonville, leaving the latter place at 9:00 a. m., 12:20 p. m. and 8:30 p. m., for all points in south Florida, viz: Hawthorne, Gainesville, Cedar Key, Silver Springs, Blue Springs, Ocala, Wildwood, Fanasoffkee, St. Catherines, Owensboro, Pade City, Flant City, Tampa, Bartow, FuntaGorda, Leesburg, Eldorado, Tavares, Apopta, Orlando, Titusville and the Indian river country. The only line giving a choice of three routes to points on the west coast of Florida, viz: Through Cedar Key, Lacocoheo, Flant City and Orlando. The most beautiful and picturesque portions of the state are traversed by this line. Hundreds of bearing orange groves are passed and seen from the cars. The lovely fakes of Lochlosa, Orange, Harris, Griffin, Eustis, Dora, Panasoffkee and Apopka are located on this line. The only line reaching most of the points named, and close and direct connections made to all others. The famous Silver Spring, the head of the Ocklawaha river, can only be reached all rail via this line. The short and direct route to the beautiful Homosassa country, abounding in fish and game, and passing Blue Springs, the head of the Wekiya (Blue river). The only line to Fernandina, with its celebrated beach of twenty-two miles' drive and only thirty-six miles from Jacksonville, three daily trains. The only line to Tallahassee, the capital of the state, Madison, Monticello and Quincy. Florida's great tobacco industries are located on this division of the F. R. & N. In fact, there is hardly an important point in the state not reached by this great trunk line system. First-class

A Big Day in Atlanta's History. Strangers in the city should not fail to call at Hawkes's optical depot, while on their round of pleasure and sight-seeing. This is the only establishment south of Baltimore, which is prepared to grind and set the axes of cylindrical lenses for the correction of astigmatism. Here you will find optical goods in the greatest variety for the correction of all classes of defective vision. Among the various kinds, Hawkes's Crystalized Lenses stand preminent. Their effect on the organs of vision is unparalled. Do not let this opportunity pass unavailed.

GOVERNOR GORDON ISSUED an order of pardon in behalf of Solomon Mosely, colored. Mosely was convicted of burglary at the August term, 1885, of the superior court of Taylor county. He was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. It was proven that he entered a smoke house, but it was ad-mitted that he stole nothing. The evidence as to his "breaking" in was very unsatisfactory. to his "breaking" in was very unsatisfactory, as was also the evidence concerning the identity of the prisoner. Newly discovered testimony in the case completely breaks down the evidence of the main witness against the prisoner.

YESTERDAY WAS VERY quiet at the state treasury. Less than $100 was received in taxes, etc.

AN IMPORTANT LETTER

From the Governor of South Carolina to the Governor of Georgia.

Governor of Georgia.

Yesterday Governor Gordon received the following important letter from Governor J. P. Richardson, of South Carolina:
COLUMBIA, S. C., April 18, 1838: To his excellency, John B. Gordon, governor of Georgia: Dear Sir—I have the honor to inform your excellency that at the request of prominent or distinguished citizens of Georgia, the attorney-general of this state has had entered upon the records of the court in Alkeu county, of this state, a nolle prosequi on the indictment against Edward Stone, for whom a requisition had been made upon your excellency. I have the honor to be your excellency's obedient servant, Governor of South Carolina.

The salient points in the case of Blackwood

The salient points in the case of Blackwood will be remembered by the public.

About eighteen months ago Edward Stone, an Augusta policeman, and a man named E. H. McNally went to Aiken county, South Carolina, and arrested one Blackwood who was charged with committing a felony in Georgia. It was claimed by the authorities of South Carolina that these men took charge of Blackwood without legal process and they were denounced as kidnappers. The officers claimed that Blackwood came back with them voluntarily.

There was an indictment against Blackwood in Richmond superior court for forgery and he was lodged in jail at Augusta.

A writ of habeas corpus was sworn out for the prisoner. He was taken before Judge Roney, who upon hearing the argument, discharged him. Blackwood was taken in charge by the sheriff of Richmond county who put him across the river. On reaching the South Carolina side he was at once re-arrested by two South Carolina officers who turned him over to the Georgia authorities on the long bridge which spans the Savannah river at Augusta. In less than two hours after he was put across the river, Blackwood was in jail in Augusta. He was tried, convicted and sentenced to the penitentiary.

While the writ of habeas corpus was being

While the writ of habeas corpus was being while the writ of habeas corpus was being heard before Judge Roney, of Augusta, the governor sued out a requisition on Governor Gordon for Stone and McNally, who it was charged, had kidnapped Blackwood, violated the sacred soil of the Palmetto state, etc. Governor Gordon declined to surrender either of the men.

It was shown that Stone was under indict-

It was shown that Stone was under indict-It was shown that Stone was under indictment in Warren county for assault with intent to murder, and the rule was that Georgia justice should be first satisfied. It was an old indictment against Stone. A few days before the requisition was served in Georgia an accu sation was lodged against McNally in the city court of Augusta, which charged him with the larceny of a dog. So the same objection which was made to extraditing Stone was made to extraditing McNally. Governor Richardson was not perfectly satisfied with the turn which affairs had taken, but the execution of the executive warrant was suspended just the same.

About six months ago McNally was was killed. That was a final settlement of his case, and now Governor Richardson, "at the request of prominent and distinguished citizens of Georgia," has notified Governor Gordon that the requisition for Stone is withdrawn.

The sale by West & Goldsmith yesterday afternoon demonstrated great strength and activity in Atlanta dirt. The property is beautifully situated at the three mile post on the Marietta road. The attendance was large and composed of men who meant business. The excellencies of the location, the many reasons for a continued advance and the grand future for Atlanta were so strongly and clearly set forth by Colonel West in his opening speech that he at once caught the attention of his hearers, and when he concluded the bidding began at a lively rate, and not a stop was made till the nearers, and when he concluded the bidding began at a lively rate, and not a stop was made till the drenching rain forced a halt. In fact, the last lot was knocked off while the rain was pouring down, and even then the crowd was slow to leave. Prices beyond calculation were obtained, and yet nearly every purchaser has been offered a profit on his purchase. This was the best sale of the season.

OLD AGE

Is attended with weakness of the stomach and bowels, causing loss of appetite, indigestion, constipation, etc., with their attending evils. These are nature's warnings, and, if unheeded, soon lead to serious results. To persons advanced in years and those who cannot take powerful medicine, Simmons Liver Regulator is most peculiarly adapted. Owing to its mild action it may be taken by the most delicate and debilitated at any time and under all circumstances with perfect safety. One of the most venerable of the United States senate, the late Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, wrote: "Simmons Liver Regulator is mild and suits me better than more active remedies."

It cures constipation by gently assisting without forcing nature. It imparts a vigorous tone to the digestive organs, improves the appetite, enriches the blood, builds up and restores the wasted energies, giving tone and vigor to the whole system. Mrs. Stephen Minard, of Macon, Ga., says: "My husband being blind for a number of years, required him to lead a very sedentary life, and he suffered extremely from indigestion. He heard of Simmons Liver Regulator, and commenced to take itregularly, The indigestion has left him and he has become more cheerful and hearty—in fact, enjoys better health now than he has known for years. It is certainly a blessing to the young and old to find such a medicine."

front of about 2,000 feet, and 397 feet deep. It is near the dummy line, and admirably situated for residences.

We will cut it up into lots 100x300 ft, with a street on either end of the lot. So that you can have your house to front either east or west, as you may prefer. This is high, nice residence property, where you can enjoy fresh country air, and at the same time be in easy and convenient distance of the city—fare on the dummy line only 5 cents.

This property is immediately north of Westwood park, recently purchased by a wealthy northern syndicate, which no doubt will be highly developed, enhancing all adjacent property, Go out and look at the property, select your real-dence lot and come and see us.

Property in this direction is rapidly developing, and will no doubt continue to do so.

One party bought six acres near this property last year for $2.000, and was offered $4.000 for it in two week's afterward, but refused it and built on it. Another party bought a little further out a year before, and refused last year two and a half times what he gave, without doing anything to his property.

Interesting Talk About One of the Best Railroads in the Country-Other Interesting Items.

"What railroad," we asked an experienced lawyer, yesterday, who is a close observer, "is it hardest to get a verdict against in this

"The Georgia road," heresponded promptly.
"It is the best managed in the state. There is one thing I have noticed about this road, all the employes are interested in it. I do not mean pecuniarly, but they stand up to it. From the track hands to the superintendent they are strictly loyal, and that goes a long way toward making it popular. They have the track hands to the superintendent they are strictly loyal, and that goes a long way toward making it popular. They have competent men, pay them good salaries, and require them to do reasonable work—I mean they do not make a man work till be falls asleep at his post.

"To their patrons they are polite and attentive. You might bootlick the superintendent all day, but he would not violate his orders. Some superintendents don't care what you do or think of their roads, if you will bootlick them. The roads have to suffer for it.

"Another thing about the Georgia railroad. This corporation has never killed a amon board its cars since the road was finished in 1844. This is wonderful, but it is true. They make the best time; the track is the best in the south. I was consulted a short time ago about some cases that grew out of this kind of condition. The superintendent of a line that runs through one state, who holds his place because he squeezes his employes, gets the most work for the least money, notified the section master on his road to reduce his force at the commencement of last winter. The section master protested and said it would be impossible for him to keep up the track on his section if his force was reduced.

"'All right," said/the superintendent, "we can get a man that will try.'

"So they did. During the winter on this same section there was a serious accident. No one killed, but the road will lose enough to keep the section up for ten years. The stockholders will be informed (they are all foreign stockholders) that the damages were obtained on account of prejudice against the road and railroads in general. Of course the stockholders will never hear the true cause of the trouble, and will brag about how their superintendent keeps down his operating expenses. Another case: An engineer goes to sleep at the throttle; there is a collision, people killed and great damage to property the result. It cests the corporation immense sums of money. In the report on the "cause of the accident, it is charged to ea rides on it wants to give a verdict against it, and so it is with your road; and it will never pay dividends until you change the policy."

There is a great deal of sound common sense in what is said above, and if owners of rail-roads would look more into these facts it would be better for them and for the people.

Mr. T. M. Emerson, general passenger agent of the Wilmington, Columbia and Augusto railroad, was in Atlanta yesterday.

Alex. S. Thweatt, general traveling agent of the Georgia Pacific railway, has just returned from an extensive trip to the "lone star state."

The New Orleans baseball club will arrive at Atlanta via the Georgia Pacific Friday afternoon at 5:25 p. m., and will leave same evening at eleven o'clock, via Georgia railroad, for Charleston, S. C. The opening up of the Fort Worth, Texas and Denver City railway, in connection with the Georgia Pacific railway, will shorten the distunce between Atlanta and Denver, Colorado, over 100 miles.

There was a meeting yesterday at the chamber of commerce building of the executive com, mittee of the Southern Railway and Steamship association. Nothing of public interest was done-the committee confining its proceedings to routine work. Among the prominent members of the committee present were President E. P. Alexander of the Central, Trafile Manager Sol Haas of the Richmond and Danyille system, General Manager Bellman of the Central, Trafile Manager Shellman of the central, deneral Manager Gault of the Louisville and Nashville and others.

Another Case of Fraud.

The market is full of imitations, represented to be the same as Hawkes's. New Crystalized Lenses, These imitations are in most cases, productive of positive injury to the eyes of the wearer. Many dislers will recommend inferior spectacles and eye-glasses and those of lower price, which afford more profit to themselves. Call at Hawkes's optical depot, and have your eyes fitted with the wonderful crystalized lenses. They have proved their value by long public use. Physicians indorse them, governors, senators, legislators and the most distinguished men everywhere commend and wear them.

Car containing Atlanta plant left this morning.

"John H. Bryant."

"Well, that is very satisfactory. Will your building be ready for it upon its arriva!?"

"Yes, the boiler is already 'set,' and everything in readiness to set up the plant in short order. We are also fitting up in the same building a handsome suit of offices, for both our construction company and the local refrigerating company, which will be ready by the time the plant is in position."

"Has the stock in your construction com-erating company, which will be ready by the time the plant is in position."

"Has the stock in your construction company alloted to Atlanta all been taken?"

"Yes, or rather it has all been spoken for, in fact considerable more than we can give Atlanta, but some of the parties have not yet made actual sui sc-iptions. I have agreed to allow them until saturday night to determine what they will take. All options on construction company in Atlanta stock will expise at that time, and positively will not be extended, the demand for the stock in other cities withmour territory make this course a necessity. I have never asked any man to subscribe and yet I have been anxious for Atlanta to take fully up to the limit allotted, and have given full time. Macon and Savannah were only alloted small amounts—which was taken on presentation—and they would be glad to take three times the amount allotted to them,"

"Where will you probably locate the next plant?"

"We had rather intended to go to Augusta."

"We had rather intended to go to Augusta "We had rather intended to go to Augusta or Nerfolk next but our Macon director, Mr. J. W. "Mr. Kimball, what arrangements have you make for cold storage?"

Crossing to Mr. J. C. Kimball the question was repeated to which he replied:

"We have a large force of men fitting up and 'insulating' twelve rooms especially for 'cold storage' and expect to have them ready in time to receive goods as soon as the plant is in position."

"How much space in your building will be devoted to 'cold storage.""

"Practically the entire building We have intended to prepare as rapidly as possible about ore hundred thousand cutic feet of space for that purpose, but the prospective demand is so rapidly increasing and such a variety of unlooked-for articles are presenting themselves for cold storage that it is probable that we will be compelled to add largely to our plans before the summer's over.
